City gets serious about restrictions on business

By MICHAEL GARDNER

THERE ARE too many retail businesses in Carmel and the city should develop zoning mechanisms to limit expansion of businesses within the commercial district, the Carmel General Plan Advisory Committee believes.

That unanimous declaration was one of several actions taken by the committee at its Aug. 19 session.

Some of the other measures the committee plans to include in its recommended revisions for the Carmel general plan include: creation of a special zone for Ocean Avenue; prohibit uses that are currently allowed in the commercial district (C-1-C) from operating in the commercial-service district (C-1-S); and rezone the hotels, motels and apartments now in the C-1-S district to another special zone.

'That's what is stated in the village charter but, in fact, our residential character is being swamped by tourist-oriented businesses or by other types that exist in amazing multiplicity. Have we had enough? Is it time to proclaim: Stop! Stop!?' he asked.

One proposal the committee was unable to explore because of a lengthy agenda is a plan by member Gene Hammond to prohibit retail businesses above other retail businesses.

The plan was initially presented to the committee in July and has since drawn protests from several downtown commercial property owners.

The committee is expected to discuss Hammond's proposal at its Sept. 2 session.

The Carmel Planning Commission asked the panel in April to review whether the city should place a limit on the number of retail businesses in the village.

However, committee members decided to delay discussion on the business limit question until they could review the land use element of the general plan.

There are about 900 retail businesses in the approximately 640 acres of Carmel, Planning Director Robert Griggs estimated. The business district occupies 42 acres.

Planning Commissioner John Logan is one catalyst behind the search for limits on retail uses. He originally brought the issue before fellow planners in the spring.

Logan told commissioners that ever since he moved to Carmel in 1931, the idea of a freeze on business has been discussed. "If it's worth conversation over the past 50 years, let's look at it."

In a memo to commissioners that was distributed to general plan committee

Thanks to Pine Cone

Dear Editor:

What can I say! Your Aug. 19 article was excellent — a beautiful conclusion to a beautiful experience! But you were too modest. Paul didn't raise the $3,500 necessary for his concert tour as a result of "newspaper publicity;" he raised it directly as a result of your articles in the Pine Cone.

Paul truly enjoyed his tour. As I'm sure you learned from your interview, the trip was an emotional experience for many reasons. The trip/experience will have repercussions/-results we won't fully realize for years to come — all positive, I'm sure. Paul came home very matured by his experience. As he told me when he called me from New York, "I had a wonderful time, but I'm ready to come home." Many thanks for all your help and Mr. Eisner's support.

Once again, thanks a lot for your help and support. Your wonderful articles, your warm empathy and understanding, and your personal support truly influenced a most deserving youngster's life.

Clarifies program fees

Dear Editor:

On Page A-6 of the Aug. 12 edition of the Pine Cone/Outlook, the article titled "Peters, Henson Clash Over EIR for Arroyo Seco Dam" erroneously states that 21 percent of the proposed Carmel River Management Program would be paid by flood plain and watershed property owners.

The district board, on Aug. 9, excluded watershed property owners and instead proposed that the $150,000 annual program would be financed by riverfront charges and water user charges. Specifically, the proposed 35 cents per linear foot riverfront fee would raise approximately $45,000 or 30 percent of the program budget, and a fee of approximately $3 per year on average for water users would raise the balance of the revenues.

Finds conduct 'shameful'

Dear Editor:

I wonder if you might allow me to make a few comments about my summer stay here in Carmel?

My grandfather, a local artist (Paul Whitman), came to this area some years ago and I spent many happy boyhood days visiting my family and availing myself of all that the area offers.

This summer I came out to Carmel with the Abbot of the Greek Orthodox monastery in which I serve as a priest-monk. Owing to the Reverend Abbot's poor health and the harshness of the Ohio winters, where our monastery is located, we had come here hoping to find a small piece of land along the Northern California coast on which to resettle the monastery. We have about a half-dozen monks and are a dependency of a very eminent monastery outside Athens, Greece.

Wearing the traditional black robes of Eastern Orthodox clergy and keeping the uncut hair and beards of Orthodox monastics, we have been subjected to some rather unseemly and incredibly rude ridicule during our visit — ridicule not confined to tourists, from whom we might expect it, but from some residents as well.

Notwithstanding the fact that the Abbot of our monastery is Princeton educated, a college and seminary professor in Ohio, a distinguished Orthodox author, and one of the most eminent theologians of the traditionalist Orthodox Church, several times he has been called names on the street and once, in the post office, derided as one of the "nuts" that Carmel attracts — and this latter remark by someone who appeared to be a well-dressed, otherwise polite individual.

I need not say that the Reverend Abbot is a bit disenchanted with his visit here. In a town founded by monks, in a state once settled by Russian Orthodox, it is shameful that monastics should feel ill at ease. From the tourists, it might be expected; from residents, it scars the beauty — should I say incomparable beauty — of the place.

I hope that my words will prompt a few people to reconsider their actions. As for the many fine, friendly people in Carmel, I hope they always maintain Carmel as I remember it from my boyhood.

Candidate blasts Panetta

Dear Editor:

I'm not concerned about leftist lawyer Leon Panetta taking trips to Las Vegas be it for gambling or girls — that's his business. But it is our business to make sure that man doesn't give our money away like a maniac.

He has supported every socialist scheme and country on the planet earth and is now pushing a resolution in the House of Representatives which would establish a Hitler style Youth Corps according to the papers.

He has been responsible for spending us into the trillion dollar national debt. The $700 "Vegas Deal" isn't the issue...it is the hundreds of billions upon hundreds of billions of dollars he has taken from you and me.

Leon Panetta has never voted for a balanced budget in his entire legislative career.

Parking problem persists

Dear Editor:

I'm not sure this qualifies as a business story, but any business person and visitor to Carmel can appreciate the frustration in finding a parking place, and it is even more frustrating when you pay for a parking space and find someone has usurped it.

We have a parking place in the Wells Fargo Bank parking lot next to our gallery in Court of the Fountains. During the week there is a bank security guard who controls the parking. But on Saturday and Sunday the only protection of our space is a sign which reads: RESERVED PARKING 7 DAYS A WEEK. CARS WILL BE TOWED AT OWNER'S EXPENSE. This doesn't help much and it has gotten so bad that I and my staff leave notes on the windshields of the cars (many of them other shopkeepers or their employees, incidentally).

The note charges them our pro-rated share of the parking for one day — and we tell them where to send their check. Naturally, you would assume everyone chucks the nasty little bill away and disappears into the summer fog. But after nearly a year in that location, we this week received our first check to pay for the day's use of the space. It was from a local couple, Mr. and Mrs. Hubert F. Weidman of Fifteenth Street, Carmel. We were so impressed with their honesty we returned the check but it still doesn't ease the parking problem.

Misses 'Police Log'

Dear Editor:

As a regular and enthusiastic visitor to your lovely village, and as a subscriber to the Carmel Pine Cone for over a year, may I respectfully protest your dropping of the Police Log from your paper.

It's items were (especially when I shared them with friends) often the cause of a good laugh; sometimes touching in their brief tale of tragedy averted; occasionally, and intriguingly, the germ of an excellent short story.

And — as my wife observes — how reassuring it was, after having read all of them each week, to find oneself thinking, "Isn't it wonderful, and comforting, to realize that there should be such a community that these misdeeds — apparent or real — or these little calamities — rather than murder, rape and grand theft, should be the daily business of the enforcers of the law."

May I urge its prompt reinstatement!

Further reflections on the recreation issue

By ROBERT MISKIMON

KEN WHITE, as most people know, is a mild-mannered fellow. He stopped by the office last week in response to an earlier editorial about the lack of an organized recreation program for the city of Carmel. In his own quiet way, Ken expressed the exasperation that many apparently feel in the community over this issue.

As a member of the Board of Education of the Carmel Unified School District, as a coach, and as a citizen and parent, Ken has been concerned for a long time about the lack of a recreation program. He has done more than voice his concern. He put in many hours last year on a joint school district-city of Carmel committee that everyone thought was going to finally get a program going.

The transfer of the weights from Sunset Center to Carmel High School under a joint agreement was — at least the way Ken White and a number of others saw it — to have been just the first step toward an expanded program of regular recreation activities for people of all ages.

The idea was to have been patterned after a successful program in Flint, Michigan, White explained when he dropped in to chat the other day. That program uses public school facilities when they are vacant for recreation programs to serve the community. The buildings and maintenance are provided by the schools, and the services of a professionally-trained recreation worker to coordinate the program are covered by the city.

That's the kind of joint program that Ken White and others who worked long hours on the most recent effort wanted — indeed, thought they would get. But nothing has happened.

"A lot of people put a long time in there was a lot of enthusiasm," White said. "Then we came to an election and the picture changed. So we're starting all over again. Every two years we have to do this."

White figures that with an initial investment of about $50,000 per year on the part of the city, a recreation professional could be hired and outfitted with an office to organize and coordinate a program using vacant school facilities. With the abundance of talent and experience available in the community, White believes the program could develop very quickly into something quite extraordinary.

All that's needed is the initial impetus to get the whole thing together; its momentum would be self-perpetuating thereafter, White believes. The focus of the program would be those individuals and families not in the upper income brackets, who can not afford to avail themselves of the many fine — and expensive — cultural, recreational, and entertainment offerings in the area.

"It can be done. It's been done in other communities," White said. "First we've got to recognize the problem and work on it. We've got to stop thinking we're unique."

Mayor Charlotte Townsend has agreed to reconstitute the city recreation committee, on which White and others served last year, in hopes of getting a concrete recreational program launched by next year. Let's hope that the idea goes beyond the discussion stage this time and actually results in some real programs, funded with some real dollars, to provide some real benefits.

Union says 'thanks'

Dear Editor:

Please express our appreciation to your staff for the excellent coverage we received during the Bruno's strike. Often, labor leaders are cynical about the kind of coverage they receive from media. I am happy to say that the Pine Cone was fair and accurate in its reports and I look forward to a mutually beneficial relationship in the future.

I want to particularly thank Linda (d'Oliviera) in the ad department and Mike (Gardner), your photographer. They showed true professionalism in their dealings with each of our striking members.

Carmel Sands project may be delayed

By MICHAEL GARDNER

A MULTI-MILLION dollar plan to demolish and rebuild the downtown Carmel Sands Lodge-Simpson's Restaurant complex may be delayed until the city adopts a revised general plan in early 1983.

The future of the project depends on whether the Carmel City Council will amend an ordinance that restricts remodeling of non-conforming buildings to 25 percent of the structure per year. The owners of the complex, the Little family of Carmel, want to entirely rebuild the complex within one year.

The council will hear a report from the planning commission Sept. 7 that recommends denial of the proposed ordinance amendment until the general plan is revised. The commission adopted that recommendation Aug. 18.

Matthew Little, spokesman for the family business interests, proposed the ordinance amendment that would allow property owners to demolish a non-conforming building and rebuild it within one year without being subject to the current city zoning regulations.

The complex, which is in the block bordered by San Carlos and Mission streets and Fourth and Fifth avenues, is the site of the 42-unit Carmel Sands Lodge, the approximately 80-seat Simpson's Restaurant, a cocktail lounge and offices.

Under the new plan, the complex would also house a bank and offices for the family insurance business.

Under current zoning regulations, only 24 units would be allowed for the new hotel and the bar would be prohibited.

Little told commissioners in June that it would not be economically feasible to rebuild the structure over four years, at 25 percent per year.

By rebuilding the project in one year, there would be a continuity of use, the reduced remodeling time would keep hostelry and sales tax dollars flowing into city coffers, and the complex would comply with current health and safety provisions of the building code, he said.

"All we want to do is rebuild Carmel Sands Lodge and Simpson's Restaurant at its current density with its current bar," Little said.

•

THE PROPOSAL was scheduled for a public hearing at the July commission meeting, but after planners appeared to support a denial, Little asked that the matter be continued until August.

The delay did not sway many votes. At its Aug. 18 session, planners voted 6-1 to recommend to the council that the proposal be denied. Commissioner Arthur Mertens was the only dissenter.

Commissioners told Little they are not necessarily against his rebuilding plan, but that they believe the ordinance amendment should be delayed until the general plan is adopted.

"My main point these days is that any major change should be shot through the general plan committee," Commissioner John Logan said. "I would make exceptions for certain kinds of emergencies. I don't believe this is an emergency."

Commissioner Gene Cava agreed: "I would hope that they (the Little family) know this is a deliberative process that we are going through to be beneficial to every family and the city as a whole.

"I would hate to make any changes to any ordinance until the general plan process is completed. For the time being I don't think anything should be done until the General Plan Advisory Committee is finished with its update," Cava said.

THE CITY COUNCIL is expected to decide Sept. 7 whether to adopt an ordinance amendment that would allow the Little family to demolish and rebuild the Carmel Sands Lodge-Simpson's Restaurant complex at the northeast corner of San Carlos and Fifth (above). (M.G. photo)

The committee is charged with making recommendations for update of the 1973 general plan. Those recommendations are expected to be presented to the planning commission this fall. The planning commission will hold public hearings before it makes recommendations to the city council, which will hold more hearings before the plan is finally revised.

"The committee has been contemplating many land use issues," she said. "We need to look at this to see if there are many good provisions that we may lose. It does seem important to me that the general plan committee look into it," she said.

"We don't see where the general plan will have an effect on this project," Little told the commission. "We're not proposing a new hotel or a new restaurant or a new bar. We're not asking for expansion. We just want to rebuild what we have."

Fred McNulty, a new commissioner who took his seat Aug. 18, voiced concern that approval of the ordinance amendment would set a precedent.

"We need to look at what kind of repercussions this may have. Would this form a precedent for other property owners?" McNulty said.

"We don't see where the general plan will have an effect on this project," Little told the commission. "We're not proposing a new hotel or a new restaurant or a new bar. We're not asking for expansion. We just want to rebuild what we have."

Little said he does not believe the commission would receive many requests from property owners to remodel. He said it is too expensive to rebuild and not that many business people own clear title to their property.

Mertens was the only commissioner to support Little's proposed ordinance amendment.

"Today, the Littles or anybody that owns a building can rebuild a non-conforming building over a four-year period," he said. "I think really we are being punitive by making him do it the hard way (and) also the uneconomical way."

Asked by the commission for a legal "loophole" to Little's dilemma, City Atty. George Brehmer said: "I see no way that you can do it without changing the ordinance. I don't see a legal way in the context of the present zoning."

Little made it clear to the commission even before the vote that he would appeal a denial. "I can tell you if the planning commission does not give full consideration or decides to put it off, our only alternative is to appeal it to the city council," Little said.

Carmel Valley air pollution monitor may not be replaced because of cuts

THE AIR pollution monitor which was removed several months ago from Carmel Valley may not be replaced because of tight money.

A $30,000 reduction in the 1982-83 budget of the Monterey Bay Unified Air Pollution Control District adopted last week may mean the removal of air pollution monitors in Monterey, Santa Cruz and San Benito counties.

The seven-member board of directors of the agency which serves the tri-county area adopted a $689,586 budget for fiscal year 1982-83 on Aug. 18 — which is $30,000 less than the recommended budget. District staff was directed to come up with ways to trim the $30,000.

The district now operates air pollution monitors in Monterey, Salinas, Aptos, and Hollister. A monitoring device was removed April 20 from the Mid-Carmel Valley Shopping Center because the location did not afford temperature and humidity controls essential to accurate readings, said Harold Hillman, director of technical services.

"The Carmel Unified School District has given us permission to use Tularcitos School for the monitor, but we'll have to lower our budget and lowering our air monitoring program has been specifically mentioned as a place for cuts," Hillman told the Pine Cone/Outlook.

"Some of the existing air monitors might have to be removed," Hillman added.

Fred Thoits, district supervising engineer, said the air pollution monitoring is the only program operated by the district which is not mandated by state or federal laws, and "it's likely the cuts would come out of that budget."

To help balance its budget, the board of directors agreed to double user fees to businesses for licensing, permits and inspections.

The board consists of supervisors from the three member counties. Monterey County has four representatives — Supervisors William Peters of Carmel Valley, Barbara Shipnuck of Salinas, Dusan Petrovic of King City, and Marc Del Piero of North Monterey County.

Santa Cruz members are Gary Patton and Robley Leavy. Enos Silva is the only member from San Benito County.

Winery doesn't mean end of Hacienda Hay

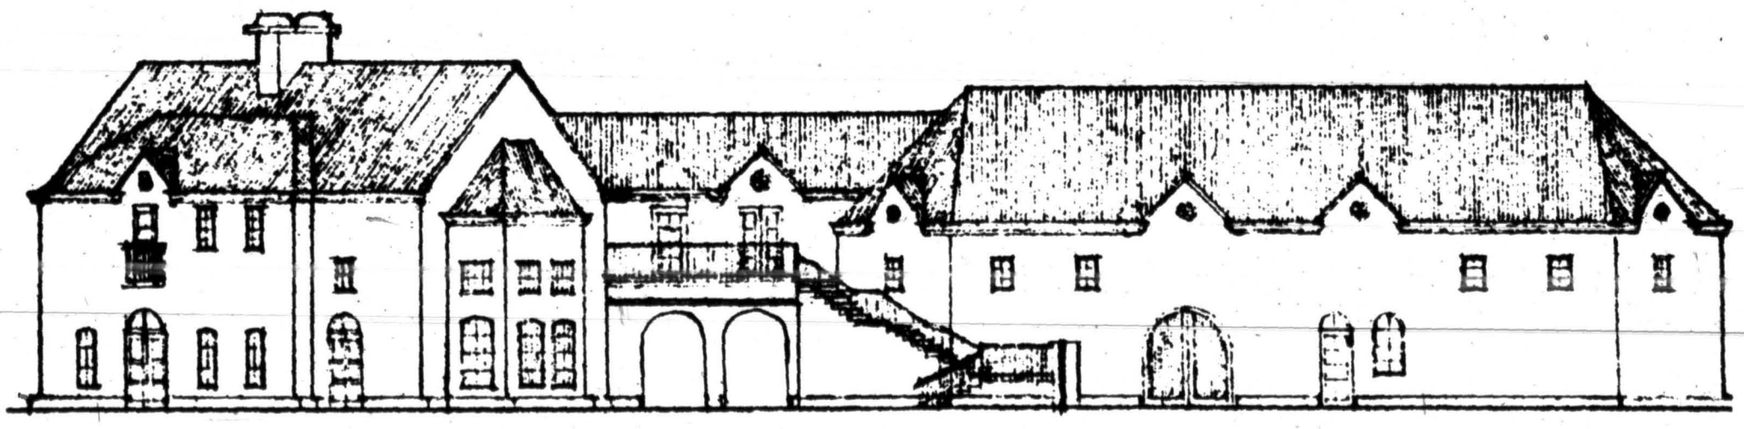
APPROVAL of a winery on the seven-acre site where Hacienda Hay and Feed is now located doesn't mean the end of the feed store.

Robert Zobel, owner of Hacienda Hay and Feed on Carmel Valley Road between the Hospice of the Monterey Peninsula and Carmel Valley Poultry Ranch, said he hopes to relocate his business close to its original site.

"We're land-bound now and need more land," Zobel told the Pine Cone/Outlook. "I will definitely relocate the business, but I need at least 20 acres. I'll either lease or rent some property."

Monterey County Zoning Administrator Robert Slimmon approved a use permit Aug. 19 to allow Robert Brower of Carmel to operate his Chateau Julien Winery at the site. The winery will have an initial production capacity of 10,000 cases of wine per year, which is to be expanded to 25,000 cases per year later.

Zobel said he sold the seven-acre site to Brower last April for the winery, but he refused to divulge the purchase price. The winery plans depict a French Provincial architectural style for the two-story structure.



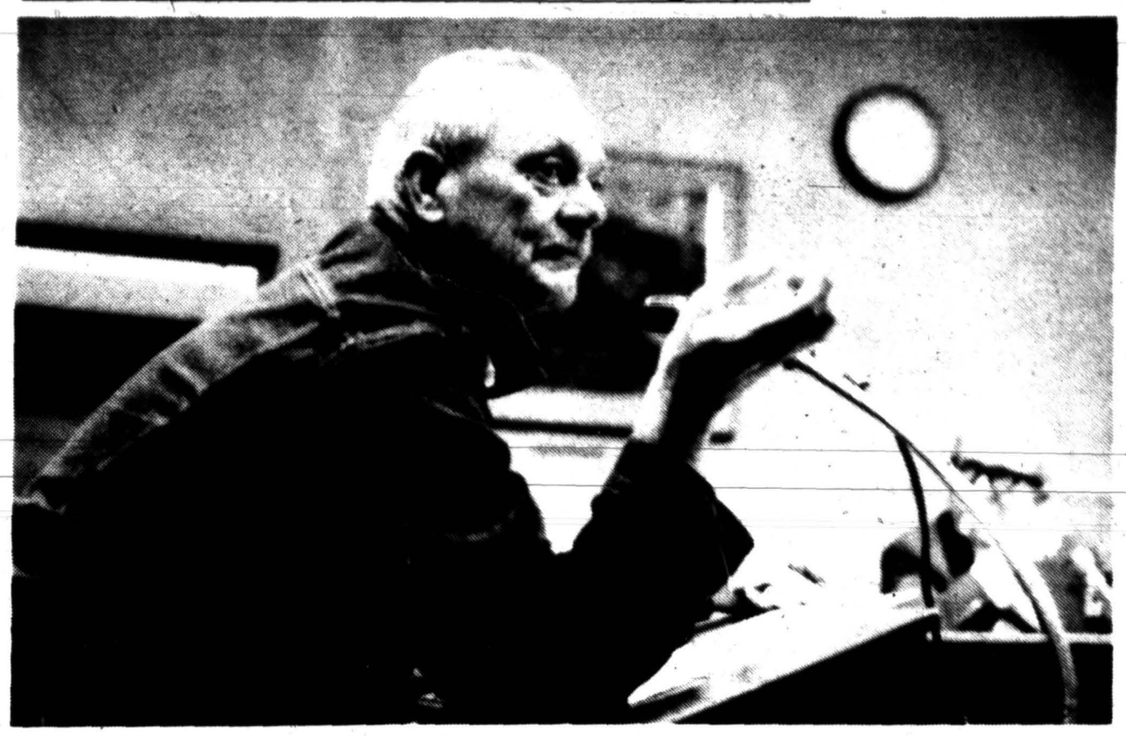
ARCHITECT'S DRAWING of the Chateau Julien winery shows a French Provincial style for the two-story structure, which will have total ground coverage of 8,670 sq. ft. Plans allow for future expansion of the winery, said Zoning Administrator Robert Slimmon.

The winery will use some of its own grapes, and Brower plans to plant some grapes on a portion of the seven-acre parcel; the bulk of the wine grapes will be purchased from other growers. Slimmon said the winery will occupy less area than the feed store and noted that it is an agricultural operation to be located on land zoned for agriculture.

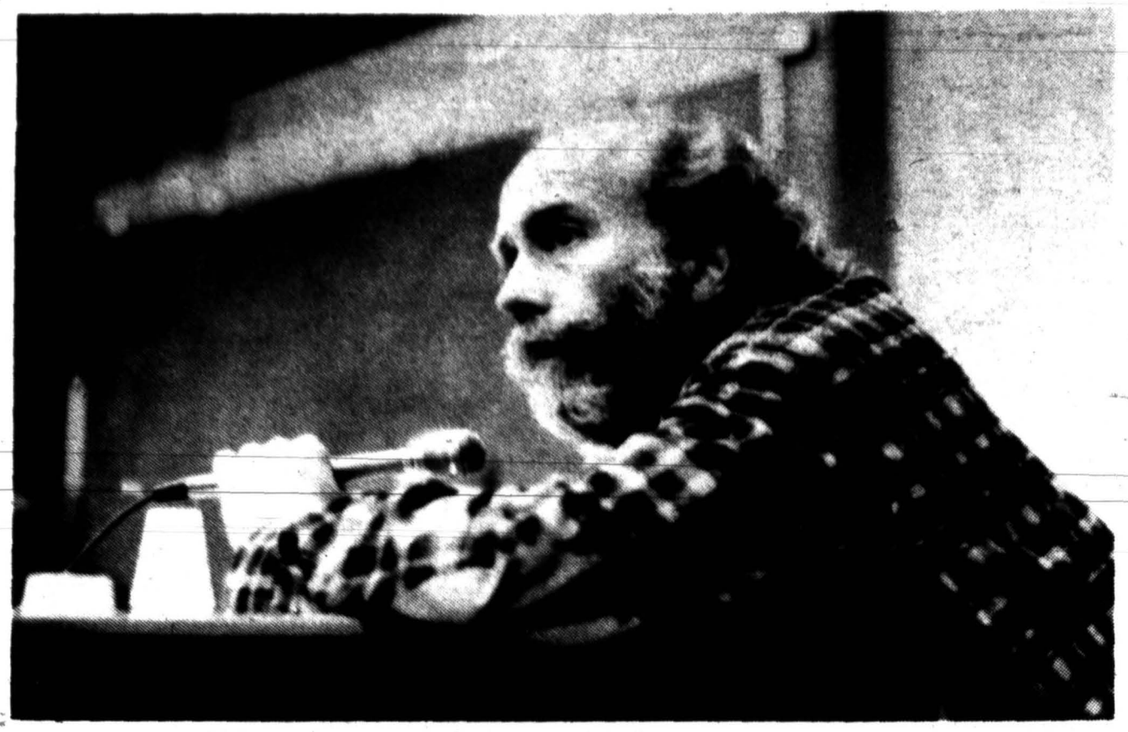
Zobel said he has no definite idea when he will move his business or when construction of the winery will begin.

"When I move has not been decided," Zobel said. "It will be months, at least. I've had several offers, but I'll try to stay in the same general area of the Valley."

Chateau Julien will be the second major winery in Carmel Valley. Durney Vineyards is located in Cachagua in upper Carmel Valley.



CARMEL PLANNING Commissioner John Logan believes it is time for the city to investigate ways to limit the expansion of retail businesses in the village. Logan appeared before the General Plan Advisory Committee Aug. 19 to ask whether members believe that business should be limited.



DR. DON DAVIDSON, a member of the General Plan Advisory Committee, said the city should ban Ocean Avenue food service establishments that allow take-out food. (Michael R. Gardner photo)

General plan panel seeks controls on business

members, Logan wrote: "Carmel-by-the-Sea is supposed to be a residential community with many necessary commercial enterprises located on the north side of the Peninsula.

"That's what is stated in the village charter but in fact, our residential character is being swamped by tourist-oriented businesses or by other types that exist in amazing multiplicity. Have we had enough? Is it time to proclaim: Stop! Stop!?" he asked.

•

AT THE GENERAL Plan Advisory Committee session, Logan asked: "Do you believe there are too many retail businesses in Carmel? If you think there are too many businesses, how do you think perhaps they can be controlled? What mechanisms do you think should be used?"

Committee members questioned Logan about which businesses he believes should be limited and in which zones. However, Logan said he wanted to just hear the opinions of the committee members.

"I have some thoughts of my own on the subject and I'm sure you'll hear about them when your general plan proposals come before us (the commission)," Logan said. "Right now I'd like to hear what you have to say."

'I think if you have a forest fire, you have to decide whether it's a wildfire; then you decide how to contain it,' Mrs. Grace said. 'I think we need to decide on a policy of containment, a policy on how to reduce and put out the flames.'

Hammond immediately made a motion that "we believe that there are too many retail businesses existing in Carmel-by-the-Sea."

The motion was seconded by Edwin Lee and carried unanimously with member Alan Williams abstaining.

After the session, Williams explained his abstention: "It's easy to attack individual businesses, but it's not right from a planning standpoint. The initial vote attacked all businesses across-the-board. They just wanted to eliminate all businesses carte blanche in the C-1-C."

Williams said he didn't want to vote no on the motion because a modified proposal would have merit. He said the committee should look at "what you want and what you don't want" instead of "making a blanket limit."

Member Jean Grace agreed with Hammond's proposal.

"I think if you have a forest fire, you have to decide whether it's a wildfire; then you decide how to contain it," Mrs. Grace said. "I think we need to decide on a policy of containment, a policy on how to reduce and put out the flames."

The committee did not specifically address the other portion of Logan's request that asked what kind of zoning mechanisms can be applied to either freeze or reduce the number of businesses.

However, the committee did discuss several other planning issues that relate to the limitation of retail businesses.

Uses currently allowed in the central commercial district would be prohibited from the commercial-service district, under a motion by Hammond that carried unanimously.

•

THE INTENTION of his proposal is to contain tourist-oriented businesses in the C-1-C zone, Hammond said.

The C-1-C zone borders are Mission Street to the east, mid-block between Sixth and Fifth avenues to the north, Monte Verde Street to the west, and Seventh Avenue to the south.

Hammond added that exceptions to the restrictions will have to be made for Carmel Plaza and the Pine Inn building, which are in the commercial-service zone but are tourist-oriented.

"We have to deal with the Plaza as a separate entity and the Pine Inn as a historic building," Hammond said. "These are both monolithic structures and I believe they should not stop us from planning what we believe is right for Carmel."

Committee members agreed that a revised general plan should create a special new zone for Ocean Avenue between Monte Verde and Mission streets.

The only specific limitation on the Ocean Avenue zone immediately suggested by the committee would prohibit all food service establishments that allow take-out orders.

"You walk up Ocean Avenue and it's just a mess," committee member Dr. Don Davidson said. "I don't oppose quality, nice restaurants, but I do oppose take-outs that litter the street."

Under the proposal, new food service establishments such as delicatessens, bakeries and restaurants that allow take-out food would be prohibited from Ocean Avenue.

The committee did not suggest any plans to amortize the uses that already exist on Ocean Avenue.

A list of uses that should be allowed in the C-1-C, C-1-S districts, and the new Ocean Avenue zone is expected to be developed at the next committee meeting.

Another new zone designed for hotels, motels and apartments that are in the commercial-service district was proposed by Williams.

Williams suggested that a C-1-Lodging zone be established for those uses, which would serve as a buffer between the commercial-service district and the residential zone.

Users on the borders of the commercial-service district are now existing hotels, motels and apartments. The zone would not create more area for the expansion of these users, Williams pointed out.

But the new zone would prohibit the expansion of commercial-service uses closer to the residential areas of the city, Williams said.

Committee members withheld judgment on his proposal until city staff prepares an overlay map that would specifically point out where the zone would be and how much the C-1-S district would shrink if the proposal is adopted.

The General Plan Advisory Committee was appointed by the city council to develop recommendations for the revision of the 1973 Carmel General Plan. Those recommendations are expected to be presented to the planning commission this fall. A final revised document is expected to be approved by the council in early 1983.

AN ARCHITECTURAL drawing illustrates the appearance of an eight-unit condominium complex that is part of a proposed project on the south side of Fourth Avenue between Mission Street and Junipero Avenue. This is a view of the complex looking south from Fourth Avenue. Another three-unit condominium complex will be constructed just west of the larger building.

Carmel condominium project to start in late fall, according to developer

CONSTRUCTION WILL begin in late fall on an 11-unit condominium project near the north city limits, developer Alan Williams announced last week.

Approval of the project on the south side of Fourth Avenue between Mission Street and Junipero Avenue was granted by the Carmel Planning Commission Aug. 18. There was no public opposition expressed.

The project encompasses two separate city zones: commercial-service (C-1-S) and multi-family residential (R-4). Both zones allow condominium projects so a variance was not necessary.

A vacant house and storage shed on the property will be demolished. Former businesses on the site included Carmel Redwood Heating and Sheet Metal, Carmel Plumbing, and lumber storage for Carmel Builders Supply.

Two separate two-story buildings will rise on the 14,000 sq. ft. site. The first phase of construction will be a main eight-unit structure with a smaller three unit building to be added later at the southeast corner of Mission Street and Fourth Avenue, Williams said.

All but one of the units will consist of two bedrooms, living room, kitchen and two-and-one-half bathrooms in a range of 1,500 to 2,400 sq. ft., Williams said. There will be a single 700 sq. ft. one-bedroom unit.

Williams said the units will be designed as individual, two-story townhouses and will share a common wall.

Parking will be provided through a 22-space underground garage.

Williams and Zigmont LeTowt, who owns Le Bistro Restaurant, are general partners in a limited partnership that purchased the property from Tom Handley. Williams refused to name the limited partners.

Handley proposed three years ago to develop a combination retail shop-apartment complex on the site, but later decided to sell the land, Williams said.

"We bought it and re-designed it for residential use, instead of commercial use," Williams said. "We want to provide more housing."

Williams said several persons have expressed an interest in buying a unit once the complex is completed next summer.

"We want to gear toward people who live in a large house in Carmel who don't want to live in the large home anymore, but they still want to live in Carmel," Williams said.

Williams said purchase prices of the condominiums have not been decided. He would not disclose the purchase price of the property site.

Carmel River walk scheduled Aug. 29

THE FIRST of five walks along the Carmel River organized by Carmel River Watch is scheduled for Aug. 29.

Carmel River Watch is a citizen "watchdog" organization dedicated to preservation of the Carmel River.

The first river walk will begin at 8:45 a.m., and will cover the territory from Valley Greens Drive to Schulte Road Bridge, said CREW President Darby Worth of Carmel Valley.

Persons who wish to participate should gather at the bridge at 8:45 a.m., she said. The walk will include stretches where there is healthy river vegetation, as well as the Schulte Road area which sustained heavy erosion damage last winter.

Other river walks are planned for Sept. 12 and 26, and Oct. 10 and 24, Mrs. Worth said. For more information, contact her at 624-7494.

Freeway opponents ready for another big battle

By ROBERT MISKIMON

"WE'RE GOING TO hit them hard again this fall."

"We" is the Save the Hatton Canyon Committee; "them" refers to supporters of the Hatton Canyon Freeway — including the Carmel City Council.

The speaker is Michael Kelly, 29-year-old head of the committee which has, by its own estimate, picked up the signatures of about 2,000 Carmel area residents who do not want the road built.

Kelly said his group will intensify its efforts before the California Transportation Commission holds a public hearing — tentatively scheduled for late this fall — on plans to abandon the $17 million freeway and sell the three-mile right-of-way.

The Carmel City Council went on record Aug. 17 unanimously in support of construction of the freeway, with the addition of a passing lane on Highway 1 from Carmel Valley road to Ocean Avenue as an interim measure to relieve traffic congestion.

'I'm a general contractor and I'm fighting the freeway because I believe in what I'm doing environmentally,' Kelly said. 'I'd make a ton of money if that freeway went through. The environment is more important to me than business.'

If nothing else, Kelly and his committee are living proof that the 30-year-old road project remains controversial; supporters of the freeway project say they have gathered as many as 4,000 signatures for their cause.

Ultimately, it will be up to the state transportation commission to count the signatures, pro and con, and to relate the degree of local controversy to the sobering conclusion of California Department of Transportation officials that funds just won't be available for 15 to 20 years — if ever.

"We're going to have a walk-a-thon through the canyon where people pledge money based on distance, as a way to raise funds for the committee's campaign against the freeway," Kelly said. The University of California-trained ornithologist said he also plans to present slide shows and lectures to local groups about wildlife in the Hatton Canyon.

"There are at least 50 species of birds and 10 species of wildlife in that canyon," Kelly said. "If the freeway goes in, there will be more growth. The road is the best control mechanism we have. The freeway is controversial, and I have a controversy within myself.

"I'm a general contractor and I'm fighting the freeway because I believe in what I'm doing environmentally," Kelly said. "I'd make a ton of money if that freeway went through. The environment is more important to me than business.

Kelly said he has been accused — as he has accused freeway supporters — of simply acting in his own self-interest, since his residence is close to the proposed freeway route.

•

KELLY READILY admits that self-interest is what sparked his initial involvement with the freeway debate, but said his concern for the environment has kept him going.

"I could just sell my house, move out to the Valley, and make a couple of million off the freeway, if I wanted," Kelly said. "It's far less damaging environmentally to widen Highway 1 than to build a freeway. In this whole discussion so far, it's never been an environmental argument. It's always based on personal interest."

In an interview with the Pine Cone/Outlook last May, Kelly offered his own theory on why the Ventana Chapter of the Sierra Club supports construction of the freeway.

"Most of the board of directors of the Sierra Club are against rescinding the Hatton Canyon Freeway because their back yards are up against Highway 1," Kelly said.

Kelly said his committee — which now consists of about 50 active members — hopes to match the 4,000 signatures collected by the opposition forces and to present them to the state transportation commission at the hearing on the freeway.

"Personally, I would like the canyon from north of Carmel Valley Road through the canyon as open space," Kelly said. "That property is worth from $1 million to $20 million. I'm sure the Monterey Peninsula Regional Park District would want the property, if the funds were available.

"The state doesn't have the money to build a freeway and we don't have the money for a park."

Kelly finds the recent support of the Carmel City Council for the freeway somewhat inconsistent.

"They're taking a no-growth position on water and sewage, then they turn around and back the freeway," Kelly observed.

The next meeting of the Save the Hatton Canyon Committee is scheduled for 7 p.m., Monday, Sept. 13 in the Monterey Library. The public is invited, Kelly said.

Mixed history of freeway

(EDITOR'S NOTE: Local support for, and opposition to, the Hatton Canyon Freeway proposal has waxed and waned through the decades, as this chronology of events related to the project indicates. It was compiled from materials on file in Carmel City Hall.)

- July of 1953, the Carmel City Council, with the full support of the Carmel Planning Commission, adopted Resolution No. 1373, again urging the development of Hatton Canyon as a freeway in preference to the present route of Highway 1.
- Hatton Canyon Route adopted July 24, 1953 as desirable alternative to widen the present Highway 1 between Carmel River and the top of Carmel Hill.
- November 1954 the Carmel Planning Commission passed on to the City Council resolution urging immediate action by the State in adopting and acquiring right of way for the Hatton Canyon Route.
- Agreement concerning effect on county roads — May 6, 1957.
- 1957, the State of California abandoned any plans for widening of the existing route.
- Recommendation for freeway in Hatton Canyon was included in Carmel's General Plan, adopted Feb. 4, 1959.
- Acquisition of the right of way was completed on June 30, 1966.
- Carmel City Council, by Resolution No. 2359 passed in July of 1966, urged state legislators to introduce bills which would insure "no additional freeways or other high-speed roads may be constructed in Carmel's environs."
- In late 1966 the board of supervisors requested a delay of construction while project was re-studied.
- Board of supervisors order supporting designation of Hatton Canyon Freeway Route as a Scenic Highway — with understanding this would not eliminate the use of a four-lane facility should that be found necessary — passed Feb. 28, 1967.
- May 21, 1970 State of California established Highway 1 along Hatton Canyon Route, from the Carmel River to the Highway 68, as a Scenic Highway.
- City of Carmel requested state to expedite construction of Hatton Canyon Scenic Highway — City of Carmel Resolution No. 2664 — June 30, 1970.
- Resolution No. 71-269 — Sept. 14, 1971 — board of supervisors urged early construction of Hatton Canyon Freeway.
- Board of Supervisors on Feb. 13, 1973 appointed the "Hatton Canyon Freeway Design Committee."
- On Dec. 4, 1973 the board of supervisors approved concept of financial cooperation with the state of California in extending State Highway 1 freeway from Carpenter Street to Carmel River Bridge.
- Monterey County Board of Supervisors adopted Resolution No. 74-529, adopted Dec. 17, 1974, providing for a county contribution of $1 million toward the construction of the Route 1 Freeway through Hatton Canyon.
- July 28, 1978 — Carmel City Council advised state it is opposed to Hatton Canyon Freeway.
- By unanimous vote, the Carmel City Council voted on May 8, 1979 to oppose an effort by the Monterey County Transportation Commission to urge construction of the Hatton canyon Freeway. The council opposition was based on "financial, aesthetic, environmental and other reasons."
- Carmel City Council voted unanimously Jan. 28, 1982 to request the state to change the "freeway" designation of the stretch of Highway 1 from 200 feet south of the Pacific Grove-Pebble Beach interchange to a half-mile south of the Carmel River. The council also voted to accept a Coastal Commission recommendation to retain Highway 1 as a two-lane road north of Carmel River only if a bypass (Hatton Canyon road) is built, and otherwise permit additional lanes.
- April 6, 1982, the Carmel City Council voted to urge the state not to dispose of the Hatton Canyon Freeway right-of-way.
- Carmel City Council voted Aug. 11 to urge the state transportation commission to hold hearings locally and at the earliest possible date on the proposed rescission of the Hatton Canyon Freeway and sale of the right-of-way.
- Aug. 17, 1982, Carmel City Council unanimously urged construction of the Hatton Canyon Freeway.

Council calls for changes in state annexation laws

By ROBERT MISKIMON

THE UNSUCCESSFUL attempt to annex Carmel Woods to the city of Carmel has convinced the city council that changes need to be made in state election laws.

When the Carmel City Council voted Aug. 17 to terminate annexation proceedings, it also approved a resolution to support efforts by the city of Berkeley for a more effective voter purge process.

Annexation proceedings were halted in accord with state laws that require termination whenever 50 percent or more of the registered voters in an area proposed for annexation protest. Opponents of the Carmel Woods annexation collected signatures of 52 percent of registered voters.

Leaders of the anti-annexation forces in Carmel Woods complained several times in recent weeks that the rolls of registered voters contain the names of substantial numbers of persons who have died or moved away.

Thus, annexation foes argued, they had to collect more than 50 percent of the signatures of those who actually live in Carmel Woods to defeat the annexation drive.

The Carmel City Council agreed with annexation opponents and with the city of Berkeley that the process used by election officials in California to rid voter rolls of the names of persons ineligible to vote needs to be changed.

The voter purge process was changed most recently in 1976, when the "positive purge" of voters was eliminated, City Administrator Doug Peterson advised the council.

"This essentially means that prior to 1976, if an individual did not vote in the general election, his name was dropped from the voter registration," Peterson explained.

The new procedure in effect for the last six years relies upon the number of sample mail ballots returned to the post office. If a sample ballot is returned as undeliverable, the name of the addressee is then removed from the list of registered voters.

Because not all sample ballots are returned to the post office whenever a person has died or moved to another address, many names remain on the voter lists improperly, according to Hugh Bayless, a Carmel Woods resident opposed to annexation. Bayless estimated that as many as 30 percent of the names on the voter registration lists in Carmel Woods should be removed.

The city of Berkeley resolution to the League of California Cities — which was supported by the Carmel City Council — states that 22 percent of the registered voters in that city could not be located at their registered address in March of 1982.

A GLANCE at the number of registered voters in Carmel through the years shows an increase — particularly after the purge proceedure was changed in 1976.

In 1970 there were 3,100 registered voters; in 1972 there were 3,406; in 1974 there were 3,385; in 1976, there were 3,270; in 1978 there were 3,324; in 1980 there were 3,759; and in 1982 there were 3,910, according to Peterson.

Maintaining accurate lists of registered voters is made doubly difficult in Carmel because of the fact most mail delivery is done through post office boxes, rather then door-to-door, Peterson said.

"A physical movement using street addresses is picked up while the use of post office boxes discourages this improvement," the city administrator noted.

A committee composed of county supervisors, state legislators, representatives from the California secretary of state's office, and city clerk's association and the voter registrars' association is trying to devise a new and better method to purge voter lists, the council learned.

Meanwhile, proponents of annexation said they have no immediate plans, either for a court challenge to the council action to terminate annexation proceedings or for another annexation attempt in one year.

State law provides that if an annexation effort fails, annexation petitions may not be circulated until one year has passed.

"It's a shame the people in Carmel Woods couldn't see the advantages of annexation," said Rowland Fellows, one of the leaders of the annexation movement. "It's too soon to tell if we'll try again. I think we'll just sort of forget it for a while.'

Joseph Vesel, head of the Carmel Annexation Now Committee, agreed.

"We want to leave peacefully and with no hard feelings," Vesel said. "It seems many of our neighbors in Carmel Woods wanted to live with a pine tree curtain around them. The time was not right.

"Annexation shouldn't be forced," Vesel said. "It should be done with enthusiasm. We say to Carmel, au revoir — not goodbye. We want to live peacefully with our neighbors and put this to rest."

New students must obtain health exams

Children who will enter kindergarten or first grade this fall are required to have a record of one complete health examination and up-to-date immunizations in their school file.

This requirement is based on a state law which was passed to provide for "early detection and correction of potentially serious health conditions and for promotion of preventive health care," according to Irene E. Greenhut, M.D., of the Monterey County Health Department.

The health examination generally includes taking a health and developmental history, dental assessment, nutritional assessment, audiometric and vision screening, physical examination, blood tests for anemia, urine test, tuberculin skin test, immunization update and additional tests when appropriate.

Children must be immunized against communicable diseases including rubella, measles, mumps, diptheria, whooping cough, tetanus and polio.

During kindergarten registration parents are given a school health certificate which is to be completed by a physician at the time the child receives a check-up. The completed health certificate should be returned to the school secretary.

Parents are urged to use their child's regular family health practitioner for this examination. Children whose families are on limited incomes or receive Medi-Cal benefits, as well as dependents of the military, are entitled to receive health examinations at no charge.

Parents who need a physician or additional information about their eligibility for free examinations should phone the Monterey County Health Department at 757-1061, ext. 307.

Pine Inn-city parking pact delayed to Sept. 7

By MICHAEL R. GARDNER

PINE INN owner Carroll McKee is optimistic that the Carmel City Council will approve a contract with him Sept. 7 to share costs of a 96-space underground parking garage.

The agreement was considered by the city council Tuesday night, but public protests and suggestions for modifications in the contract forced the council to postpone action until its Sept. 7 session.

The proposed agreement would divide the estimated $500,000 to $700,000 cost of a two-level parking facility between the city and the Pine Inn. The parking lot would be constructed on two parcels owned by the Pine Inn on the northeast corner of Sixth Avenue and Monte Verde Street, and on three parcels owned by the city on the northwest corner of Sixth Avenue and Lincoln Street.

The parking garage would be built in conjunction with a proposed annex to the Harrison Memorial Library, and would form the base of a portion of that structure.

McKee told the Pine Cone/Outlook Wednesday morning he will meet with designer Alan Williams and his own attorneys before he decides whether to withdraw from the project or to continue negotiations with the council.

"Naturally I was disappointed by their action. I thought we were pretty much in agreement on the thing," McKee said. "This last proposal I naturally thought was what they (the council) wanted. I will meet with my attorneys today (Aug. 25).

Asked if the delay by the council would force him to reconsider Pine Inn participation, McKee said: "I couldn't say now. I want to cooperate with the city. I would love to get this thing started. I think it's a very good project for the Pine Inn and I think it's a very good project for the city. It would take parking off the street and it would help the library annex."

Councilman Frank Lloyd asked Tuesday whether the Pine Inn would withdraw from the project if the city delayed action on the agreement.

Williams pointed out that Pine Inn has negotiated with the city for nine months and the council has held four public sessions on the proposed facility.

"I think we've had sufficient public hearings. I think we are drawing close to the 11th hour," said Williams, who is the project representative for Pine Inn.

But Lloyd believes that the delay will not affect the future of the project. "I don't think the McKees (Carroll and son Max) will pick up their marbles and go home," he said.

•

UNDER TERMS of the proposed agreement, Pine Inn and the city would share the project costs up to a maximum of $350,000 each. The Pine Inn would use 49 spaces on the lower level of the two-story garage and the city would have control of 47 spaces on the upper level. The ground level is the site of the proposed library annex.

Construction of the proposed annex is linked to the development of the parking garage. Officials say joint construction of the garage and annex would be cheaper and more efficient than separate construction.

With this in mind, the Harrison Memorial Library Board of Trustees has delayed action on an agreement with the annex architect until a city-Pine Inn pact is approved.

Library trustees, meeting a few hours before the Aug. 24 council session, did approve the allocation of $2,100 for the pre-design phase of the annex project.

The pre-design phase will include a concept of which library services will be included in the annex and the space needs.

Schematic drawings, which will specifically detail the annex size and elevation, will be developed after the pre-design is completed.

Library trustees will discuss the effect of the parking garage delay on their plans when they meet at 4 p.m., Aug. 30 at Carmel City Hall.

Council members pointed out that the original parking facility agreement would have allowed the two parties to withdraw from the project only if the cost to each exceeded $350,000 or if an environmental impact report indicates there would be a substantial adverse impact on the area that could not be mitigated.

Council members said Tuesday they want an "escape clause" to permit the city to withdraw if the annex project is cancelled.

Williams said the new clause is acceptable to the Pine Inn if a provision is included that requires the city to reimburse the hotel for costs incurred up to that point.

•

'WE THINK the city should pay all of the costs up to that point if the contract is cancelled with the Pine Inn through no fault of their own," he said.

The council also raised questions whether Pine Inn should share the costs of a concrete slab below the proposed library annex.

Under terms of the proposed agreement, the Pine Inn would pay for the "foundations" and "four retaining walls," but there is no mention of the annex floor.

Both of these changes and several minor modifications will be discussed by the attorneys for both parties before the revised agreement is presented to the council Sept. 7.

Councilmember David Maradei was one of the more vocal protestors of the facility. Maradei questioned the wisdom of a 50-year contract and the equal cost split with the Pine Inn.

"I think Pine Inn is getting a tremendous deal. Tourists would be able to use the upper level (the city-controlled facility) who would be going to the Pine Inn or their other businesses," he said. "I think this is a remarkable transaction for the Pine Inn.

"I can not see putting a parking lot in the middle of Carmel forever. I think this frightens me and I don't understand why it dosen't frighten more of the council," Maradei said. "We're really stating our values here. Are our values creating more parking spaces?"

Mayor Charlotte Townsend disagreed: "I think it is always easier to stay at the status quo. To me the primary thing is to build the annex and the parking facility is icing on the cake. This is like the Hatton Canyon Freeway: there is no easy or good solution, but something has to be done."

Several members of the public also spoke, including library trustees, general plan advisory committee members and former mayors.

Former Mayor Gunner Norberg, who served on the council for 16 years, labeled the project "atrocious" and claimed approval "would sell the city down the river."

Norberg said it borders on "stupidity" to enter into an agreement for the construction of a facility before first seeing schematic drawings.

The proposed agreement includes provisions for the schematic drawings, but also ties the city to construction, he said.

Carmel General Plan Advisory Committee Chairwoman Jane Mayer suggested that the council wait until results of a mail questionnaire of citizens on land use issues are tabulated.

The city-poll, which included questions on parking costs, will be tabulated within the next two weeks, she said.

Other members of the general plan committee also spoke.

"I'm very disappointed at the contract before you." Gordon Campbell said. "Carmel has prided itself and professed to believe that business is subordinate to the residential character of the village.

"The Pine Inn Corporation is a multi-faceted business enterprise that is not just a hotel. The businesses in the block appear to me to be tourist-oriented."

June Wood, another committee member, said she does not believe the city should become a partner with private enterprise in such a project.

Former Mayor Barney Laiolo supported the plan. "I was the instigator of this several years ago," Laiolo said. "The thinking behind the project was to relieve parking in the residential area. We still have a parking problem."

Laiolo pointed out that the city must act soon to use accumulated in-lieu parking fees or face lawsuits from businesses that paid the charges. The fees were collected by the city specifically to provide off-street parking.

The city share would be paid from more than $300,000 collected from businesses for in-lieu parking fees. The fees, which are established on a formula based on construction costs, are charged to new businesses that can not provide the required amount of parking.

Under city law, the fees can only be used to develop more public parking.

The Mayor's Report

Response has been good to Carmel questionnaire

By CHARLOTTE TOWNSEND

CITY HALL has received 1,745 completed general plan questionnaires. This is about 44 percent of the total registered voters in Carmel-by-the-Sea and represents more persons than voted in the last election.

The responses will be tabulated and results will be made available in about two weeks. Thanks to each and every one of you for your cooperation, and I congratulate you all for taking this opportunity to let those of us in government know how you feel about issues that affect our village.

You can be sure that your comments will be studied carefully and will play an important role in the planning now underway.

Whether we want it or not, Carmel continues to attract national attention. There was a two-page spread on the Monterey Peninsula in the Aug. 15 New York Times and the San Francisco Chronicle had an article in its Aug. 17 issue which mentioned our residents' disapproval of the tourist hordes.

As a result of these stories, letters and phone calls have been coming in, some of them frankly abusive but most of them congratulatory. Most people appreciate the fact that we have something very special and very fragile here and that it takes constant effort to maintain it.

Recently, I was asked by the mayor of another city if I was the "mayor of Carmel or Carmel-by-the-Sea." This makes me think that we will have to concentrate on how to differentiate between Carmel-by-the-Sea and the "Carmel" post office area at the mouth of the Valley. For our village to be confused with that area of over-development, stoplights and asphalt is indeed unpalatable.

Ken White, president of the Carmel Unified School District Board of Education, visited me recently and at his urging I have taken steps to reactivate the Committee on Recreation. Former Mayor Barney Laiolo has agreed to head it once again. This very important aspect of village life is important to people of all ages and needs to become a part of our planning as soon as possible so that, hopefully, we can begin a program next year.

I would especially like to talk to young parents about recreation needs and I hope some of them will contact city hall for an appointment. Your council has had many items of importance on its agenda recently. Please visit, write, or phone us with your thoughts on these, so that we can really make our local government one "of the people, by the people, for the people."

Hunger Project works for end of hunger in 15 years

By ROBERT MISKIMON

WITHIN 15 years, hunger will have been eliminated from the face of the planet forever.

An impossible dream? Not to those involved with the Hunger Project, like Susan Holmes of Carmel.

Holmes, a 36-year-old research psychologist with CTB/McGraw-Hill in Monterey, said a lack of political will is the only reason hunger still exists.

"The reason why hunger hasn't been handled is because people don't pick up the tools and do it," Ms. Holmes said. "We believe hunger hasn't ended because we don't have the will to end it; we have the technology to end it."

The stark reality is that 28 people — 21 of whom are children — die every minute as a result of hunger, she said. A "hungry" nation is one in which the infant mortality rate is 50 or more deaths per 1,000 population.

"One-fourth of the people in the world go to bed hungry every night," Ms. Holmes said.

The infant mortality rate is used as an indicator of hunger because starvation and malnutrition are what usually make other diseases fatal to children, according to the Hunger Project.

'The reason why hunger hasn't been handled is because people don't pick up the tools and do it,' Ms. Holmes said. 'We believe hunger hasn't ended because we don't have the will to end it; we have the technology to end it.'

Ms. Holmes is one of 15 members of the Hunger Project committee on the Monterey Peninsula; she has been involved for about a year with her husband, Harry Bowkley, a computer consultant. Holmes' role as one of almost two million Project Hunger volunteers worldwide is to present "hunger briefings" which consist of eight hours of films, lectures, and discussions about world hunger and how to end it. The next briefing is to be held from 9 a.m. to 6 p.m., Saturday, Sept. 11 at the Monterey institute of Foreign Studies.

The primary focus of the Hunger Project is to increase public awareness of hunger and to generate pressure for its elimination by 1997 through the application of existing technology, Ms. Holmes said. The first step toward that goal is to dispel some persistent myths about hunger:

• There is not enough food to feed the hungry. ("There is lots more food than we need now," Ms. Holmes said. "We can feed the additional 2.5 billion people estimated by the year 2000 with existing world food production.")

• Hunger keeps the world population down.(The Hunger Project argues that hunger actually encourages population growth, since "hungry people have more children because more of their children die," according to a leaflet. These children are needed as workers to insure the survival of their families.)

• We don't know how to end world hunger. ("Thirty-five countries have ended hunger as an issue since World War II," Ms. Holmes said.)

•

THE HUNGER Project is a non-profit, charitable corporation founded in 1977 and based in San Francisco. It has a paid staff of 25, including Executive Director Joan Holmes (no relation to Susan Holmes) and is governed by a nine-member board of directors.

Seventy-eight percent of the Hunger Project $2.7 million budget goes into services, according to a brochure. Twelve percent is used for management expenses, and 10 percent for fund-raising activities.

The Hunger Project is primarily a vehicle for public education; it is not a relief organization, Ms. Holmes said. "We don't feed people," she said. "We want to make people so aware that hunger exists that they will want to end it. We want to provide them with the information they need to help end hunger.

"The purpose is to let them know that individuals aren't powerless, that we can do more than just gestures," she said. "We don't have the answer all laid out. We think that appropriate solutions have to be worked out for different countries. The first thing we want is to get people to be responsible for ending starvation."

Although the emphasis of the Hunger Project is primarily educational, the organization launched and paid for a national newspaper and advertising campaign in 1980 which raised $1 million in direct donations which provided relief in Cambodia and Thailand, according to Hunger Project literature.

And the Hunger Project organized and sponsored a fact-finding delegation which visited Somalia and Kenya in 1980 to assess the hunger and refugee crisis in East Africa, according to the same brochure. The Hunger Project then undertook a public education campaign to bring the situation to the attention of the people of North America. This included testimony before a Congressional committee, public educational presentations in major American cities, and production of a documentary film, Hunger in East Africa.

As her share of the work, Ms. Holmes has briefed 143 persons on the Monterey Peninsula about world hunger and the work of the Hunger Project since February. Later this year, she hopes to present briefings for Carmel High School students.

She describes her volunteer efforts as "real challenging and frustrating. To get 25 people to show up for a seminar takes a lot of energy."

Ms. Holmes, who has lived in Carmel for about two years, served in the Peace Corps and has "always been interested in humanitarian projects."

MOST OF THE hungry people in the world are distributed within the so-called "great hunger belt," which includes all of Africa and stretches through the Middle East and into Southeast Asia and the Orient, Ms. Holmes said.

"Once you get a sense of how hunger is distributed, you can see that it's manageable," she said. "You can see that there are limits to it. Poor and rich countries have all handled hunger. Korea handled it through agriculture; Hong Kong through trade and tourism; Russia, Costa Rica and Chile have all handled hunger."

To "handle hunger," according to Ms. Holmes, means to reduce the infant mortality rate below the 50 deaths per 1,000 population figure used by the Hunger Project to define hungry nations.

"Handling hunger does not appear to be related to politics," she said. "There is no particular way things have to be to handle hunger. We have no single idea on how to do it; we support any solution that works."

Comparison of infant mortality rates provides some sharp images of hunger. The Hunger Project uses infant mortality rates as published in 1982 by the Population Reference Bureau, a non-profit corporation in Washington, D.C.

That agency compiles its statistics from the United Nations, the U.S. Bureau of the Census, World Bank estimates, country reports from the World Fertility Survey, official country publications, and special studies, Ms. Holmes said.

By Hunger Project tables, the infant mortality rate in the United States is 11.8 deaths per 1,000 population, she said. In the Soviet Union, the rate is 36 deaths per 1,000 population. Sweden has the lowest rate in the world — 6.7 infant deaths per 1,000 population.

Cambodia has one of the highest infant mortality rates, at 212 deaths per 1,000 population. In Afghanistan the rate is 205 per 1,000; in Upper Volta (Africa) 211 per 1,000. Mexico has an infant mortality rate of 56 per 1,000. In Haiti, the rate is 115 infant deaths per 1,000 population but in Cuba the rate is only 19 per 1,000.

Ms. Holmes is encouraged by the fact that when Indian Prime Minister Indira Ghandi visited San Francisco recently, she asked for a meeting with Hunger Project officials and requested that the project be brought to her country.

Wide gap between school funds and pay increases

By MICHAEL R. GARDNER

THE CARMEL Unified School District Board of Education says it cannot afford employee pay raises of more than 4.4 percent for the 1982-83 fiscal year.

The board is expected to adopt a $7 million final budget Sept. 7 that would provide just $222,236 for staff pay hikes. Employee bargaining units have asked for 14 percent increases, however.

Supt. William Rand has estimated it costs the district approximately $50,000 for every 1 percent across-the-board staff pay increase.

Negotiators for trustees and the staff are expected to continue contract talks through early September, but Rand is not optimistic that a compromise can be reached before the final budget must be adopted.

Rand said there is little chance the district will be able to afford a staff pay increase of much more than 4 percent.

"Once a settlement is reached all that is left is the transfer of the ending balance funds," Rand told the Pine Cone/Outlook.

'I think we're hopeful. We would definitely like to settle before school starts,' he said. 'It's always nice to start the school year with a settled contract.'

"We don't feel we have any more money. They'll (staff) have to study the budget and they know what kinds of monies are available."

Staff salaries and fringe benefits will cost the district $5.61 million, or 80 percent of the total budget. Teacher salaries total $3.58 million (51 percent of the budget), not including fringe benefits.

Salaries for classified (non-teaching) employees total $1.075 million, or 15 percent of the budget. Fringe benefits for all employees cost the district $964,735, or 14 percent of the budget.

Seventeen percent of the budget has been allocated for supplies and other operating expenses.

The remaining 3 percent is the beginning balance, earmarked for staff pay increases.

Certificated and classified staff negotiators have asked for a 14 percent pay increase.

All salaries, minus fringe benefits and pay raises, will cost the district an estimated $4.65 million, according to the 1982-83 budget. It would cost the district an additional $651,027 to grant a 14 percent across-the-board salary hike with no provisions for increased fringe benefits.

"We haven't offered anything yet," Rand told the Pine Cone/Outlook Aug. 20. "We're a long ways apart obviously. We're just going to have to let it run its course."

•

JIM AGAN, chairman of the Carmel Teachers Association negotiating team, said it is in everyone's best interests that a settlement be reached by the time school opens Sept. 8.

"I think we're hopeful. We would definitely like to settle before school starts," he said. "It's always nice to start the school year with a settled contract."

Agan said he is uncertain whether teachers would accept a pay increase offer of 4 percent.

"I'm sure we would take it under advisement and study to see where additional funds may be available," he said. "I can't say yes, we would settle or no, we wouldn't settle."

Imogene Speiser, president of the Carmel Teachers Association, was out of town and unavailable to comment.

In an interview with the Pine Cone/Outlook in June, Mrs. Speiser said that if the district does not pay its "professionals professional wages," it will lose the best teachers.

"If the district becomes mostly new teachers, the quality of education will go down," Mrs. Speiser said. "The board says it wants to spend the money on the most important part of education and that's in the classroom with the teacher and student contact."

Although the employee pay increase will probably be less than that granted in 1981, both sides hope to avoid the messy confrontation that occurred last year.

Before the two sides finally settled on a 5.25 percent increase and a contingency hike dependent on additional district income last year, there was a teacher demonstration and an impasse was declared.

Teachers picketed in front of schools in August, but agreed to go back to work without a contract when school opened in September.

A federal mediator was then called in and the dispute was settled.

"I hope we can reach an agreement without all of the problems we had last year," Rand said. "We just have to wait and see."

•

ALTHOUGH SALARIES are a major provision in a proposed new contract, teachers have also asked for increases in fringe benefits, a smaller teacher-student ratio and authorization to job-share on a 50-50 basis with another instructor.

Under a job-share program, two teachers who want to be employed half-time could divide one teaching position.

Negotiations are expected to continue through next week and one session has been scheduled for the afternoon of Sept. 2, just hours before the board of education meets.

Trustees reduced the total amount of money available for staff pay increases at their Aug. 17 session.

Trustees decided to allocate $69,000 of the beginning balance to three separate projects.

The income was from "one time monies," which include an unexpected increase in state subventions for attendance and the lease of Woods School.

The state has provided school districts an extra $11.88 in average daily attendance revenue, which added about $30,000 more to the budget coffers. But the state has indicated the additional funds will only be available for one year.

In addition, the one-year lease of Woods School to a private educational institution will provide another $96,000 in "one time monies."

Trustee Doyle Clayton suggested that the district budget $69,000 of this money to three separate projects: deferred maintenance ($35,000), demolition of Woods School ($24,000) and equipment repair ($10,000).

Under a special program, a district can allocate a certain percentage of its budget for deferred maintenance programs and receive a matching grant from the state. By allocating the maximum $35,000, the Carmel district will receive an additional $35,000 from the state.

The plan to demolish Woods School is not definite, but trustees decided to allocate the estimated $24,000 in case they decide later to tear the building down and sell the 2.3-acre site as individual lots.

Briarcliff Academy officials who now lease Woods School have expressed an interest in buying the site.

Clayton said replacement costs could be lowered if the district allocated money to pay for an ongoing repair program.

Proposed arboretum parking lot

HARRIET ROWNTREE (above) indicated where the Carmel Forestry Commission wants to construct a five-space parking lot near the Lester Rowntree Memorial Arboretum in Mission Trails Park. The planning commission rejected the plan Aug. 18 because of possible environmental damage and violation of zoning laws. The forestry commission is expected to decide Aug. 31 whether to appeal the commission decision to the city council. Mrs. Rowntree, president of the Arboretum Committee, said a parking lot would assist members who bring gardening tools and soil to work in the Arboretum. Currently, workers must park on a slope on Hatton Road. Many of the volunteers who tend the Arboretum are elderly and need to park closer, Mrs. Rowntree said. The proposed parking lot would be hidden from the view of neighbors and it would cost the city an estimated $5,000 to construct. The approximately one-half acre Arboretum was named after the late Gertrude Ellen Lester Rowntree, founder of the California Native Plant Society. The Arboretum is a joint project of the Native Plant Society of Monterey and the forestry commission. The site consists of more than 30 different plants native to California. Harriet Rowntree is the daughter-in-law of the late Lester Rowntree. (M.G. photo)

Planning commission recommends 'subsidiary' business controls

SUBSIDIARY BUSINESSES may be severely restricted by the city.

The Carmel Planning Commission has recommended that the city council enact a new ordinance that would limit subsidiary businesses to 20 to 25 percent of the gross sales of the main business.

A "subsidiary business' is defined in the proposed ordinance as one conducted in any place of business which produces less than one-half the gross income derived from business on the premises conducted by one business license.

Griggs pointed out that the new subsidiary business use controls would not affect existing establishments.

The recommendation has been taken under consideration by City Administrator Doug Peterson, who originally asked the commission to develop a policy on subsidiary business.

Peterson said he will review the commission report before he makes a decision on whether a change in the ordinance should be drafted and sent back to planners for a public hearing.

Under a city moratorium against the proliferation of tourist-oriented businesses, subsidiary businesses can only account for 25 percent of the gross sales of the total business receipts.

Before the moratorium was enacted two years ago, a subsidiary business could account for 49 percent of the sales in the establishment.

Planning Director Robert Griggs believes the city needs to restrict the percentage of sales allowed to a subsidiary business and to require the primary and subsidiary businesses to be compatible.

"It's very difficult. If the use is outrageous, such as a motorcycle shop in a grocery story, that's easy. But what about a deli in a bakery?" Griggs asked.

"Forty-nine percent is also high. How can I or anyone else tell the difference between 49 and 51 percent? It's impossible," he added.

Griggs pointed out that the subsidiary business use would not affect existing establishments, but would be used to control such uses in the future.

The question of subsidiary businesses has also been raised by the Carmel Business License and Code Review Board during its review of the license for Carmel PhotoArt inside the Paradise building on the northeast corner of Ocean Avenue and Dolores Street.

The primary business use listed on the city license for PhotoArt is its art gallery, located downstairs. The allowed subsidiary business is a photographic processing division upstairs at street level.

The business license board has indicated it does not believe that the art gallery and art supply sales amount to the required 51 percent.

•

THE BOARD ordered Carmel PhotoArt ON July 15 to present documentation by Oct. 21 that the gallery and retail sales gross 51 percent of the income.

If those sales do not amount to 51 percent, the board may revoke the PhotoArt business license.

However, Griggs pointed out that a new city ordinance to decrease the sales percentage for subsidiary businesses would not apply to PhotoArt because its license was issued before the reduction could be enacted.

In other action, the planning commission has also recommended that photographic processing businesses be restricted to the commercial-service district (C-1-S).

That recommendation is also before Peterson and may be returned to commissioners in ordinance form.

Under the recommendation, PhotoArt would become a non-conforming use because it is in the commercial district (C-1-C). The only other photographic processing business in the village is Carmel Camera Center on the southwest corner of San Carlos Street and Fifth Avenue, which is in the C-1-S zone.

County seeks more CV Ranch data

CARMEL VALLEY RANCH may be required to provide more environmental information before it proceeds with plans to build a 100-unit resort lodge.

The Monterey County Planning Commission considered a staff recommendation Wednesday (Aug. 25) that a supplemental environmental impact report is required for the Carmel Valley Ranch Specific Plan.

The supplemental EIR would update information on ground water, geology, traffic, soils, biotic resources, archaeology, acoustics, grading and runoff at the development.

The planning commission and board of supervisors approved a use permit and tentative map for another 11 building lots at Carmel Valley Ranch last February. The ranch already had approval for 140 residential units and tentative approval for 80 more.

However, an agreement with the county stipulates that no more than 160 units at Carmel Valley Ranch may be occupied until the developer contracts for construction of an underpass at the Carmel Valley Road-Robinson Canyon intersection. The development may include as many as 500 residential units and a hotel under the specific plan.

But the environmental impact report for the ranch should be updated before further development proceeds, said planning staffer Cathy Stein.

"Our problem is that the EIR for the specific plan is seven years old and there's a lot of new information that needs to be included," she said. She estimated that the supplemental EIR, which will be paid for by the developer, will cost less than $5,000 and take about 45 days to complete.

Zoning Administrator Robert Slimmon said one question that needs to be resolved concerning the resort hotel is its relationship to the amount of open space at Carmel Valley Ranch.

"The specific plan said the resort hotel would be built on 47 acres, but their plan is to build it on 30 acres," Slimmon said. "They want to take credit for some other areas in open space."

Slimmon said the project includes about 1,200 acres of open space.

The resort lodge, which was approved by supervisors as part of the Carmel Valley Ranch Specific Plan, would be a 100,000 sq. ft. facility, Slimmon said. It would include a 100-seat capacity dining facility, a bar and lounge to seat 80 persons, 1,050 sq. ft. of shops, and meeting rooms to accommodate 300, Slimmon said.

Business board ponders carriages

By FLORENCE MASON

HORSES — OR HORSEPOWER?

Can you picture a horse-drawn carriage in the streets of Carmel? An enterprising young woman would like to establish that sort of "tourist courier service," but the Business License and Code Review Board found a number of reasons to soft-pedal her idea.

Lorna Moffat, who lives on Scenic Road, outlined her plan in a letter to the business license board and compared it to services in Disneyland, New York City and Vancouver. Her original proposal was for a "caterpiller-like carriage which seats 20 people, to be drawn by two well-trained large horses."

The horses would be required to wear tail-bags for sanitation purposes. The route she suggested was between the mouth of the Valley, The Barnyard and Carmel. She estimated her service could keep approximately 50 to 60 vehicles out of the Carmel downtown area every day.

When she appeared before the business license board, Lorna Moffat proved to be flexible in her thinking, adjusting some of her ideas as the board came up with its objections: congestion on the proposed route (especially on Rio Road); other sanitation problems not resolved by the use of tail-bags; a need to conform with Public Utility Commission regulations; difficulty of getting the vehicle up Carmel hills; potential liability problems for the city.

Miss Moffat's alternative suggestion that electric carts could be used ran into some of the same problems. City Administrator Doug Peterson said the city already has investigated this possibility but found the hills would make it very difficult. He was concerned about possible use of loudspeakers to advise tourists of the sights along a cart's route.

Board member Sandy Swain said she hoped Miss Moffat pursues her idea.

"I think it has great possibilities if you can solve the legal problems," Swain said. She said she referred to either the horse-drawn carriage or the electric cart alternative, and encouraged the young woman to seek advice from the city attorney.

Building inspector Ron Warren commented that to get up Ocean Avenue you would need "someone who can handle an eight-horse team." Warren said it was almost surely a matter of using an internal combustion engine. He suggested using horses from the mouth of Carmel Valley to Carmel Mission and an internal combustion engine from there to Carmel.

The board took several "straw votes" to give Miss Moffat some idea of its thinking. The concept of a horse-drawn vehicle received a 6-1 negative vote; the vote on a motorized vehicle was positive by the same tally.

"We'll go for an internal combustion machine or an electric vehicle," Miss Moffat remarked.

Peterson suggested that she refine her proposal, do more investigation of types of vehicles, routes, insurance questions and PUC regulations.

"In the meantime, we'll be checking prior operations of this type in the city and considering the various laws it would come under," Peterson said.

What gave Lorna Moffat the idea for a service of this type? "I've always been around horses, and I thought it would be a quaint, appropriate thing for Carmel," she said. She confirmed that she will consider alternatives, perhaps vehicles like those in use as shuttles from the parking areas at Community Hospital.

Miss Moffat has lived in the area 10 years. She does massage "for a living," has also been a waitress at the Highlands Inn, and is a freelance writer.

ACTIVITY AT THE CROSSROADS

One of Del Monte Center's first businesses — Elizabeth Simmons Fashions — will move to The Crossroads. The women's shop, which has been in its present location since 1965, will move lock, stock, barrel and sales staff to a Crossroads Boulevard location later this year. The timing depends on completion of space requirements for this particular enterprise.

Owner Bud Simmons said there are only three businesses of this type still left in the area after 27 years — Derek Rayne, Harriet Duncan's and his Elizabeth Simmons Fashions. He was delighted to know that the Harriet Duncan tradition will be carried on by long-time Carmel businesswoman Pernie McMahon.

The move will give the Simmonses 500 sq. ft. more space. Simmons said they would carry over the same look, the same type of operation and the same "better" line of clothes, including Albert Nippon, Molly Parnis and Adele Simpson.

Elizabeth Simmons is the firm's "high sales person," according to her husband. "She's been my top-notch saleswoman since she was 17," Simmons said proudly. She is also consulted about what to wear and when to wear it by many of the stores's customers.

Simmons' pride in his family extends to their son, Steve. Originally a rancher, Bud Simmons has turned over his cattle operation in Oregon to Steve, a graduate of U.C. Davis. Then there is a brand new restaurant in Bend, Ore. the family will open around the end of November. I can't tell you its name, but enterprising Bud Simmons promised to let me know when that's decided. The door will certainly be open to traveling Carmelites.

***

Debbie Bradburn, marketing director of The Crossroads, told me that three new leases have been signed at the Rio Road shopping center: Kron's Chocolates (of New York), Chelsea Flowers and Gifts, and Gelato Mio, which will sell freshly made pasta and gelato ice cream.

***

And while we're still at The Crossroads, there are developments at The Collection's two stores there. Jim Poile informed me they have rented a separate warehouse for the antique English pine furniture they now import and that sales are good. Personal note: the Poiles now have three of their four sons and a daughter-in-law working with them. Son Jeff has just arrived from his three-year stay in Cario to round out his experience in the retail and wholesale end of the business. He is fluent in French and Arabic and plans to return to Europe and the Middle East to continue direct imports for the family business.

A FULL HOUSE ON MISSION STREET

The Court of the Fountains at Mission Street and Seventh Avenue is nearly full once again, after several moves have taken place. The latest arrival is "J.R. Stephan Associates," a showroom for Jaro Stephan's interior design business.

Stephan told the Business License and Code Review Board that he will move from offices at the mouth of the Valley to open a Carmel "showcase" for the work his firm does: interior design, architecture and contracting. He will show pieces for sale upstairs at ground level, with offices and drafting space in the basement. Some items are contemporary and there are reproductions and art work.

Stephan spoke with real appreciation for the type of building into which he will move.

"My work needs that type of building; it's not a 'cottage' type," he said. Professional services account for about two-thirds of his business; the rest is merchandise. He also expressed his love for Carmel and his hope to do "something exciting right here in town."

Jaro Stephan is a member of both interior decorating and architecture professional organizations. He has been in Carmel seven years and in California for many more.

There's a co-owner for the new business: Carolyn Muir. She describes herself as "an innocent bystander," a silent partner. "It's something I always wanted to do. Stephan did some work for me and I was impressed," she said. Mrs. Muir has lived in Carmel 10 years and this is her first business venture.

IT'S STILL FUN

She did it for her own family and friends just for fun. Now she does it professionally. Nancy Erdbacher has joined the Carmel interior design firm of Oliver White, A.S.I.D. as an associate designer.

"We had a lovely home for 25 years, which I decorated," Mrs. Erdbacher said. "It was written about and photographed. Then we bought an older home in the Maple Park area of Salinas which also turned out very well. Ollie White saw it and was interested in my becoming associated with his firm."

Mrs. Erdbacher will commute to the offices at Dolores Street and Eighth Avenue. She was born and raised in Salinas and has been a frequent visitor in Carmel and Monterey as she pursues Junior League and other activities. She and her Family interests kept Mrs. Erdbacher at home for many years, where she used her academic preparation in home economics and art on the home front. Now she sounds happy — even excited — when she says: "This is a good time of my life to start something new."

RETIRING — AGAIN

W.J. ("Jack") Van Every, who runs a Carmel shop for his son, Gordon, says there is "a tremendous market" in Carmel for the shop's wares. The shop is for sale, which invites Van Every's second retirement.

What is so much in demand? Clocks! Van Every said Van's Clocks and Things, in Bonnymead Court on Lincoln Street, is one of only two places in Carmel which sell timepieces. (The other is the Timepeace.)

During the past six years there have been only two makes of grandfather and wall clocks sold at Van's — Howard Miller and Ridgeway. "The two largest clock manufacturers in the country," Van Every said. Van's Clock and Things also offered a variety of brass items.

Jack Van Every, who first retired several years ago, will retire again to travel. Mrs. Gordon Van Every said her husband plans to take over his father-in-law's business in Fallbrook, near San Diego. It will be something different but not unfamiliar to "Van" since he'll return to being a specialty contractor and follow the old German craft trade.

THINGS ARE HAPPENING IN THE VALLEY, TOO

There's now an energy shop in Carmel Valley. You have to know where to look for it since it is really a new division of a well-established business — Valley Hardware Company, in the Mid-Valley Shopping Center.

Bill Smith is proprietor of the Energy Shop. It's the same Bill Smith who once had a fireplace shop in the center. His new shop is an expansion to include various heaters, water conservation products, new control devices for furnaces and insulating techniques and equipment. The emphasis is energy conservation.

Smith, who lives in the Valley, has been in the area almost six years. He and his wife have a 17-year-old daughter.

***

Valley Hardware owner Dick Krueger calls what is going on their "a self-defined expansion, a broader definition of where we think things are headed."

Things are headed, he and Bill Smith agree, in the direction of energy conservation. That's one area of expansion for the company. Another results from Valley Hardware's acquisition of an additional 1,500 sq. ft. of space. It's an opportunity to offer bulk things "you can't put on shelves," he said. Krueger listed building materials, lawn seed, fertilizer, pre-mixed concrete, fencing and posts — "not your standard package goods."

This energetic merchant said he wants to be the major hardware and home-improvement materials source for Carmel Valley.

A POCKETFUL OF NOTES

There's a new owner for the Mole Hole, San Carlos Street gift and artworks shop. His name is Michael Heggie and he lives in Palm Desert. When we can catch up with him, we'll tell you more.

***

And there's a move in the offing for Eunbok Kim's small, attractive shop called "Annie's." It's from her San Carlos location to a shop with street frontage in the May Court on Mission Street between Fifth and Sixth avenues. She'll offer the same lovely blouses, women's apparel and accessories in a somewhat larger space.

If you are curious about Toc of the Town, the antique store which vacated that space in the May Court so soon after owner Ernie Lostrom moved forward last May: Ernie will show his wares in a cooperative in Santa Cruz, but will not have to be on the scene every day. That will give him more time for his law school studies.

Reiser had owned the San Carlos Street hostelry before it was sold to a Laguna Beach couple interested in conversion to a time-sharing project. This type of arrangement was prohibited in Carmel by a moratorium incorporated into the municipal code last May. Webster said there will be no change in the motel's present facilities or operation.

The Business License and Code Review Board has taken what might appear to be a small step toward better control of business licensing in Carmel. In effect, however, it could signal a significant change.

In the past, the board usually approved applications for new businesses (or change of ownership) "subject to the final inspection." Now the board usually witholds formal approval and continues each application for whatever period is required for completion of needed repairs or planned remodeling. The change, suggested by Building Inspector Ron Warren, is intended to force the satisfactory completion of repairs or remodeling before the business is allowed to open.

FIELD SERVICE HAS BUSY SUMMER

The Carmel Chapter of American Field Service has had a busy summer.

Claire Louise Arnal, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Robert Arnal of Carmel Valley, has arrived home from her AFS year in Ondres, France. She will attend UC, Berkeley in the fall.

Alan Siegrist, son of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Siegrist of Carmel has lived with a family in Toyama, Japan since April on the AFS year program.

In late June, the Carmel chapter held a farewell picnic at Stewart's Cove to say good-bye to Philippe Masquelier and Hendrik Balters. Philippe has returned to Belgium and will attend the university and Rick is home in Switzerland and will complete his high school education.

David Keith, son of Mr. and Mrs. Howard Keith of Carmel, is spending the summer as an AFSer in Diemen, Holland, and will return to his senior year at Carmel High School in September.

Amery Burleigh, daughter of Judge and Mrs. William Burleigh of Carmel, has spent the summer taking Arabic in preparation for her AFS year to be spent in Cairo, Egypt. Amery departed Aug. 19 and will spend the year living with the Hammouda family.

Rie Kita of Shizouka-Ken, Japan, has arrived in Carmel and will live with Mr. and Mrs. Stephen Grant while she attends Carmel High School as a senior. The Grants had a welcoming party for Rie on Aug. 15.

The Carmel AFS Chapter urges Carmelites who are interested in meeting young people from foreign countries or who would like to hear from the Carmel High School returnees about their AFS experiences, to contact Mrs. Stephen Grant or Mrs. Richard Sippel.

CARMEL VALLEY WOMEN'S CLUB REUNION TEA

The Carmel Valley Women's Club traditional Reunion Tea is planned from 3 to 5 p.m. Wednesday, Sept. 1 in the home of Mrs. George Toole, Carmel Valley.

Hostesses for this annual event are the new board members: President Virginia Card; First Vice-President Millie Grant; Second Vice-President Joy Overman; Recording Secretary Dorothy Bramhall; Treasurer Beth Morrow; Corresponding Secretary Louise Morriss; Directors Amy Allen, Mary Guilford, Dorothy Gonzenbach, Nellie Mirani and Betsy Litwiller.

In addition to welcoming new and potential members, the reunion tea starts the new year of active participation in entertaining programs and fund-raisers for community needs.

For more information, phone Mrs. Gordon Wells, 659-4318.

AIR FORCE BIRTHDAY BALL PLANNED

The 35th birthday of the Air Force will be celebrated Sept. 17 at 6 p.m. in the Barbara McNitt Ballroom at the U.S. Naval Postgraduate School.

The birthday ball is sponsored by the Air Force Squadron at the Defense Language Institute Foreign Language Center in Monterey.

The evening will include dinner and dancing to the music of the Air Force Band of the West.

All active duty and retired military on the Peninsula are invited to attend. Dress will be mess dress, combination one or equivalent civilian attire.

Ticket information is available by contacting 1st Lt. Larry Workcuff at 242-8370 or 242-8115. Deadline to purchase tickets is Sept. 14.

CROSBY SCHOLARSHIPS TO LOCAL YOUTHS

Trustees of the Bing Crosby Youth Fund have awarded a $3,000 grant to the scholarship fund of the Monterey College of Law. Three local law students have been selected to receive partial scholarships out of the Crosby Youth Fund grant. They are Lee Fresh and Robbie Glen Lucido of Carmel and John Zorbas of Pebble Beach.

The Monterey College of Law, a tax-exempt, non-profit community law school, will celebrate the tenth anniversary of its founding in September. It is located at 498 Pearl St., Monterey. A total of 165 students from Monterey, Santa Cruz and San Benito counties have enrolled at the college for the 1982-83 academic year.

Carmel High music teacher wants more classes

By MICHAEL GARDNER

NEW CARMEL High School music teacher Gary Stotz believes there are enough students interested in music to expand the program from one band class to a full complement of courses.

"The prime concern right now is to build the music program, to expand the numbers," said Stotz, who was hired Aug. 17 by the Carmel Unified School District Board of Education.

"The talent is there and floating around campus. The problem is getting them interested in the band and to make it an honor to play in," Stotz told the Pine Cone/Outlook this week.

Stotz replaces Karen King, who was hired in January after the death of longtime Carmel High School music teacher Henry Avila. After a pledge of about $30,000 in financial support from the Friends of Carmel Schools (FOCUS) to expand musical offerings at Carmel Middle School, trustees transferred Mrs. King to the middle school as a full-time music teacher beginning in September.

During budget discussions this summer, trustees said the district music program should be offered for all grade levels. However, the high school program has been limited to one band class taught by Stotz on a part-time basis because of lack of funds.

Supt. William Rand has expressed the hope that eventually the high school music program will expand.

"There is a possibility," Rand told this newspaper, "as interest is generated through the middle school program, we believe more students will become interested on the high school level and we could hire a full-time teacher."

Registration for the band class now totals about a dozen but Stotz believes it will increase.

"One goal is to double the size, hopefully by the end of the semester. If not, at the end of the year," he said. "There were a lot of people who sat in on the class last year and played. There's a lot of people in school who, once motivated, will be interested in playing."

CARMEL HIGH School music teacher Gary Stotz — who will begin his teaching duties part-time in September — practices on the flute, which is one of his favorite instruments.

Stotz said an "ideal" band size would be 50, but that 25 is adequate. "If we can double to 25 and then double that later, I feel we will be on our way," he said.

Other classes that Stotz believes would provide a complete program include: beginning and advanced band, music theory, and jazz-rock.

"The one thing I would also like to see is a district-wide music festival where you meet at the end of the year for a big concert," Stotz said. "The students will be able to show what they have learned and also see the next step from elementary school to middle school and from middle school to high school."

•

MUSIC WILL also help students in their other studies, Stotz believes.

"First, music is an international language. Second, you're both training and applying when learning," he said. "As a consequence, it's been proven that students who do well in music will also do better in other studies.

"It's a discipline. If you learn and apply to play your instrument well, you will learn and apply your other studies," he said.

Stotz believes it is important for a student to progress individually and as part of the musical group known as a band.

"We will stress the importance of working together musically. I will help them individually and also together so that we will have a finished product for other people to hear," Stotz said.

The band will perform at football and basketball games this year, Stotz added.

Students who wish to add the fourth period band class to their schedule should contact him in the music room at lunch time the first day of school, Sept. 8.

Stotz said the lack of students is not the only obstacle to a successful program: there have been problems with missing and broken instruments and equipment.

An electric piano and a public address system are missing; Stotz said he is uncertain whether the equipment was stolen or simply misplaced by someone in the district. Persons with information on the missing equipment are asked to contact Stotz at the high school, 624-1821. No questions will be asked.

Tax-deductible donations of musical instruments and money to pay repair costs are also welcome. Stotz said anyone who would like to donate can contact him at the high school.

Stotz, who lives in Monterey with his wife Karen, came to the peninsula three years ago. He formerly taught part-time in Pacific Grove and full-time in Downey.

Before he accepted the teaching position, Stotz worked at Bartlett Music in Carmel.

He received his bachelor's and master's degrees from California State University, Los Angeles where he majored in music composition and secondary education. He previously received an Associate of Arts degree in recording arts from Golden West College in Huntington Beach.

Scouts return from long trip

Nine Scouts from Explorer Post 3 and Boy Scout Troop 3 of Carmel have returned home after a 3,600-mile, three-week trip to the Philmont Scout Ranch (137,493 acres) in Cimarron, N.M..

During their stay at Philmont, the scouts hiked more than 57 miles over rugged terrain under varying weather conditions. They also participated in conservation projects, fishing, fly tying, horseback riding, roping, branding, burro racing, and adobe brick laying. The scouts also witnessed demonstrations in rock climbing and black powder rifle shooting when weather conditions precluded their participation in these activities.

During the trip to and from Philmont, the scouts visited Edwards Air Force Base — the space shuttle landing site — the Grand Canyon, the Petrified Forest, the Koshare Indian Kiva, Old Fort Bent, the Air Force Academy, Peterson Air Force Base (C-130 cargo aircraft), F.E. Warren Air Force Base (helicopter) and Old Fort Bridger State Park.

The scouts were accompanied on the trip by Scoutmaster Art Crego and troop committee person Jan Crego. Mr. Crego was enrolled in a conservation course at the Philmont Training Center while the scouts hiked in the wilderness.

WAR ON SLOT MACHINES BREAKS OUT IN CARMEL

Once more another war to eliminate slot machines in Carmel and other sections of Monterey county was under way this week.

Members of the Carmel police department were in receipt of a letter from District Attorney Russell Scott and Sheriff Carl H. Abbott asking their upmost cooperation in confiscating all "money slot machines" in operation in Carmel.

According to Argyll Campbell, deputy district attorney, any vending machine which does not give merchandise value for every coin placed in it is illegal. Any machine which gives the player a chance to lose his money or make a profit is barred by law.

BEER, TOAD RACE, DANCING FEATURED AT STREET FAIR

A world's championship horned toad Darby, music by the Presidio band, street dancing, concessions, good food and a Bavarian Beer garden will be some of the features of the street fair to be held on Dolores Street Saturday September 10th in order to help replenish the depleted coffers of the unemployment fund.

When the call went forth for aid and assistance to help put the street fair over in a big way, all Carmel rose to the occasion and generous contributions in the way of time and merchandise were offered. For the street fair all the merchants on Dolores Street have agreed to keep their stores open and will in many cases sell their goods to the public, turning over the profit to the fund.

Music for the street dancing will be provided by the Presidio band.

Throughout the length of the street, booths will be erected wherein will be sold coffee, waffles, and apple popovers for those who enjoy good food. Also in booths there will be grab bags, fish ponds, for the children and grown-ups alike.

A real Bavarian Beer garden will be one of the features of the fair. Sammy Sampson has agreed to turn over her Blue Bird Tea garden, dress her waitresses in costume and provide music for the occasion.

Among other things that will be provided at the fair in September will be fortune tellers, a dramatic sketch, cigarette girls and games of chance and skill, where the visitor will be able to either increase or deplete his fortune according to the whims of lady luck.

However, the feature of the evening will be the horned toad Darby where hundreds of toads will be out on the course with the will to win and the spirit of "do or die" for old Carmel. This Darby will be for the championship of the world, and will not only surpass anything seen before but will make the Olympics seem like backyard kid gatherings.

Although it is not necessary, it is hoped that as many people as possible will turn out in some kind of costume in order that the fair be more colorful.

Don't neglect pets when school opens

By JUDITH A. EISNER

SUDDENLY, there's a nip in the air early in the mornings, despite the lovely warmth of the daytime, and it doesn't take much imagination to see those big yellow school buses back in action when school begins on Sept. 8.

For many families with school-age children (and a majority of these are pet-owning families), this is a time of buying new school clothes, of admiring spiffy new shoes, of proudly bearing home a shiny new lunch kit, all in preparation for "The Day" when school begins.

Somewhere, amid the preparation and planning, and perhaps forgotten during the shopping trips and last-ditch summertime enjoyment, there may be a family pet who doesn't understand what's going on and why he's being ignored.

If your dog is really the childrens' pet, he's likely to exhibit definite symptons of excitement or anxiety, depending on his temperament and on how close to the kids he's been all summer.

Once the children actually do go off to school, a drastic change in routine is in store for these dogs. If they've grown accustomed to lazy summertime living, with late rising and a leisurely day spent accompanying their young masters at play, suddenly they're faced with the confusion of "hurry up or you'll miss the bus" breakfasts and long, dull days of inactivity.

If your children have taken the dog on outings during the summer where he's gotten a good share of exercise, he may go off his feed when suddenly there's nothing much to do but mope around.

Where he's spent the last three months following bicycles headed on gala expeditions, he may suddenly begin following mother's broom, much to her annoyance. Or, worse, he may decide to follow the children to school.

A FAMILIAR SIGHT along our semi-country roads during the school year is a pack of friendly dogs milling about while the youngsters await the school bus. Unfortunately, no one pays these dogs much attention as the children are too busy talking, laughing and tussling among themselves.

Many times last year we passed bus stops after the bus had picked up its passengers and found the deserted dogs still milling about, frequently in the middle of the road. At least three dogs we know of were killed on the road shortly after they had escorted their young masters to the bus.

Other dogs, either because their masters walk or bike to school, or because they know the way, wind up at the school itself. No matter how loving or friendly or gentle each individual dog may be, mixing a few loose dogs in with a large number of excited children on a school playground is not a good idea.

If loose dogs running on school grounds can be caught by school officials, they are tied up and a call is made to the SPCA to come get them. You may inadvertently lose your dog through your own lack of vigilance.

IF YOU ARE a parent who is forced to care for your child's dog while he's at school or busy with extra-curricular activities, there are certain things you can do to make things easier for yourself, for your child and for the dog (who's really innocent and only wants to be where his master is).

Most important for any pet dog is to have a secure, escape-proof run, fenced yard or pen in which you can safely confine the dog and know he'll be there when your child comes home from school.

Unless you are in the habit of walking your child to the bus stop, don't permit the dog to accompany him. He may be injured, cause injury to others, or get into trouble before he decides to come home. It's also illegal as there are leash laws in most areas.

It may help the dog if your child gives him a daily pre-school treat before he leaves the house, and it's a good idea for the child to confine the dog in his yard and tell him to stay there.

The dog should have fresh water, shade and protection from rain or cold in winter, as well as several strong toys to occupy him while he's left alone.

In scheduling your child's time during the school year, be sure to include at least a small amount for a daily walk/romp with the dog. Ten minutes after school or just before dinner makes up for many hours of separation and is good for both child and dog. Think of the quality of the time spent together rather than the quantity.

If the dog really belongs to the child, insist that the child prepare his food and feed him each evening (under our supervision, if necessary) and wash his dishes.

On weekends, there's more time for taking long walks or playing together and it's a good time for a thorough grooming if this has been neglected in favor of homework during the week.

It's not fair to make a dog into a "summertime" or "weekend" playmate. Dogs offer their affection every day of the year and deserve care and consideration in return.

Deaths

George Walter Vye

George Walter Vye of Carmel died August 16 at Community Hospital after a period of failing health. He was 91.

Mr. Vye was born Feb. 24, 1891, in Upton Southampton, England. He served with the 72nd Seaforth Highlanders of Vancouver, Canada, during World War I. Mr. Vye and his wife, Helene, moved to Carmel shortly after their marriage in 1919. He worked as a landscape gardner and she owned a dress shop in Carmel. Mrs. Vye died in August 1976.

During World War II, he and his wife served with the American Red Cross at the Rainbow Corner reception center for troops in London.

Mr. Vye was a member of the Carmel Foundation and the British American Club.

He is survived by his sister, Mrs. Grace Kemsley of Southampton.

The Paul Mortuary was in charge of arrangements.

The family suggested donations to the cancer fund at Community Hospital.

Nancy Strathmeyer

Nancy M. Strathmeyer of Carmel died August 17 at Community Hospital after a long illness. She was 58.

Mrs. Strathmeyer was born Nov. 4, 1923, in Toledo, Ohio. She was a member of the Toledo Symphony Orchestra, playing solo French horn. She attended Barnard College in New York City and was graduated from the University of California at Berkeley, where she was a member of Delta Delta Delta sorority.

She was a prominent real estate agent in Carmel and Carmel Valley and former chairwoman of the Monterey County Democratic Central Committee. She has been listed in "Who's Who of American Women."

She was active in working on the annexation of Carmel Valley schools to the Carmel Unified School District.

Mrs. Strathmeyer was twice vice president of the Carmel Board of Realtors, was active in the League of Women Voters of the Monterey Peninsula, the Community Hospital Auxiliary, Monterey Bay Alumnae Panhellenic and was a board member of the Carmel Valley Chamber of Commerce.

Survivors include her husband, Charles, and daughter, Kevan, both of Carmel; a son, Jeffrey, of Salinas, and two grandsons.

The Paul Mortuary was in charge of arrangements.

The family suggested memorial contributions to a charity of the donor's choice or to the Hospice of the Monterey Peninsula.

Robert W. Drew

Robert W. Drew, a former resident of Carmel Valley, died August 17 in Tuscon, Ariz., after a long illness. he was 61.

Mr. Drew was born in New York City, May 26, 1921. He graduated from the American Academy of Dramatic Arts in New York, and performed in many stock and off-Broadway stage productions.

He served as an Army Air Corps pilot in the early years of World War II and retired from the Air Corps as a result of injuries received in the crash of a C-54.

Mr. Drew attended Columbia University and worked in advertising in New York. He became an air traffic controller later, and was employed at Fritzsche Field at Fort Ord. He was a resident of Carmel Valley from 1959 to 1964.

Survivors include his wife, Becky, of Green Valley, Ariz., and Aspen, Colo.; children, Gregg, Leslie and Alan, and their mother, Ginnie Drew, all of Carmel Valley; sister, Dorothy Mills of Marina and Beverly Mueller of Sonora, and one grandson.

Jennie C. Bartram

Jennie Cannady Bartram of Carmel died August 17 at the Carmel Inn. She was 92.

Mrs. Bartram was born April 27, 1890, in Emporia Kan. She graduated from The College of Emporia in Emporia, and lived in Topeka, Kan., for more than 40 years before moving to Carmel. She was a resident of Carmel for more than 25 years.

Mrs. Bartram was a member of the Carmel Orchid Society, the Carmel Foundation, and was an award-winning master weaver.

Survivors include her sons, Vernon L. Bartram of Carmel and Robert D. Bartram of Overland Park, Kan.; a sister, Mabel Clark of San Diego and three granddaughters.

The California Cremation Society was in charge of arrangements.

The family suggested contributions to a charity of the donor's choice.

Hiram Lester Lawyer

Hiram Lester Lawyer, a retired Army lieutenant colonel, died Aug. 17 at Community Hospital following a brief illness. He was 76.

Col. Lawyer was born June 21, 1906, and lived in Carmel for the past 3½ years. He was formerly a resident of Los Angeles. He retired from the Army in 1957 after 17 years of service.

He was stationed as a student in the Japanese department at the Defense Language Institute in Monterey in 1947.

Survivors include his wife, Suzy, and a sister, Beulah Aldredge of Hemet.

The Paul Mortuary was in charge of arrangements.

The family suggested memorial contributions to the Hospice of the Monterey Peninsula.

PETER EVANS

Guitarist Peter Evans to perform

Guitarist Peter Evans will present a program of classical and flamenco guitar music on Sunday, Aug. 29, at 2:30 p.m. in the garden of the Henry Miller Memorial Library in Big Sur.

A donation of $2 is requested; proceeds will benefit the Miller Library, located on the east side of Highway 1 a short distance south of the restaurant Nepenthe.

The small cultural center was established in 1981 through the generosity of Emil White of Big Sur. A close friend of writer Henry Miller, White donated his home and land to the Big Sur Land Trust to create a library which features the works of Miller and his friends and other Big Sur writers.

It is open to the public daily.

Peter Evans, a resident of Palo Colorado, has studied guitar in both Spain and France, and most recently at Juilliard in New York.

He has toured nationally and internationally and was a featured soloist with Sergio Mendex and Brazil '88 for a number of years.

BILLY GRAHAM FILM, THE LIVING WORD, AT FIRST BAPTIST

The Living Word, a new film produced by World Wide Pictures, will be presented by First Baptist Church of Carmel, Carmel Valley and Schulte roads, on Sunday, Aug. 29 at 7 p.m. The film is free and open to the public.

Featuring narration by Billy Graham and Cliff Barrows, the film weaves together Scripture passages, great works of religious art, music and some of the most stunning color footage ever filmed in the Holy Land. The film touches the heart and mind of the viewer with its relevance to 20th century mankind.

Rich in visual beauty and enhanced by a powerful, original musical score, The Living Word brings the pages of the Bible to life in a fresh new way.

The Rev. Roy McBeth, pastor of First Baptist Church, extends an invitation to all to attend. "The Living Word is an outstanding film for anyone who has unanswered questions about just what the Bible means to us today," he said.

Father Farrell's wisdom

'Lay down your mop and mope'

Feast of St. Clare, Aug 11, 1982 La Playa Rotary

Recently a friend of mine, a very senior citizen one year older than myself, was cited on the Los Angeles Freeway for going 50 miles per hour. Huge trucks, buses, pickups, even a Model-T Ford going to an antique car show zipped past him at 70 miles per hour.

The Highway Patrol officer asked him if he knew why he was giving him a ticket.

"Sure I do, I'm the only man in California you can catch." The officer said "I'm charging you with mopery (i.e. to mope)." He made it sound like the most serious crime in the vehicle code. Perhaps the world would be better off if more of us committed "mopery" (except on the freeway).

Oh Lord help us to realize the importance of slowing down, of relaxing, even of goofing off. Help us to take time to reflect, to refuel, to recharge. Our Blessed Lord often went into the wilderness alone and He recommended this practice to His disciples. May we see that it is not necessary to rush 24 hours a day, seven days a week.

May it dawn on us that the world, especially our world, can run very well without us. It may be a blow to our pride, our self-esteem and our exalted opinion of our own importance but it should improve our humility, that rare virtue of seeing ourselves as we really are. As my great Aunt Lizzie used to say: "Lay down your mop and mope."

Carmel's popular weekend entertainment:

Garage sales flourish here

By FLORENCE MASON

THEY ARE a special group of people who know each other by sight but who seldom meet other than Saturday between 8 a.m. and 10 a.m. They are eager, sometimes bold, aggressive or even — if kept waiting — belligerent. They are grabby. Argumentative. Decisive. Indecisive. They are the "regulars" and the occasional newcomers who patronize Carmel's popular weekend business and entertainment: garage sales.

Visitors marvel at the quality of wares found in the garages, yards, patios and driveways of well-kept Carmel residences. It's not the same, they will tell you, in Oakland or Santa Cruz or even "the City." Long-time residents have found that out when they go visiting and try some other town's garage sales, "tag sales," or whatever else they might be called. Even Pacific Grove or Monterey can't compare, they say.

Many Carmel garage sale shoppers impose strict limits on themselves and only go to sales in certain neighborhoods. Others extend their shopping tours to Pebble Beach, Carmel Valley or down the coast. "Sunday only" sales get a few staunch followers, but for the most part it is early Saturday morning that brings out the crowds.

And crowds there are, especially when the proprietor keeps firmly to an 8 a.m. or 9 a.m. opening, complete with a rope across the driveway, or some other barricade. Impatient would-be buyers begin to line up and jockey for place with feigned casualness well in advance of the announced time. Some stand off to one side and pretend complete disinterest. But those are the ones others watch most closely, for they may be the first to make their moves when the barrier comes down.

While they have been waiting, many shoppers have scanned the wares from a distance; when the time comes they dash to the particular table or items in which they are interested. Gimbel's basement has nothing on this.

Occasionally, someone who is waiting will become annoyed at the seller's apparent lack of compassion and will fret, ready to storm the bastions. Nastiness is sometimes not far off. I saw this once when one seller insisted — perhaps sadistically — on waiting until the hands on his watch reached exactly 9 a.m., even though he had been set up and ready to go for some minutes.

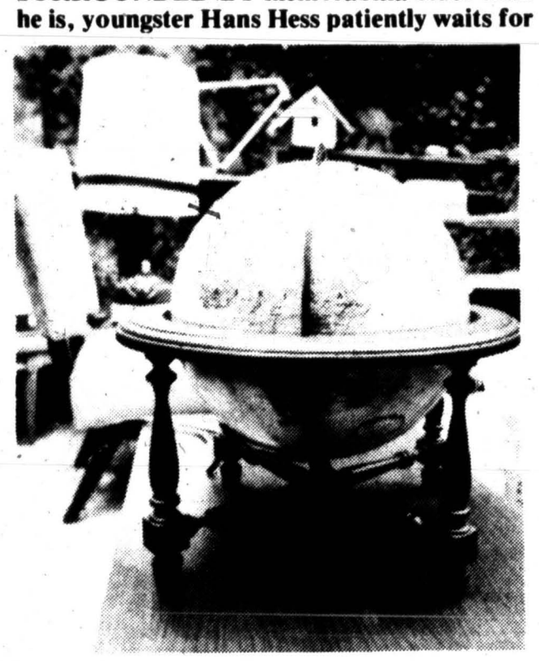
In most cases, however, the starting time is flexible, a fact well-known to regulars. An 8 a.m. starting time can bring eager purchasers as early as 7 a.m. Nine o'clock starts almost invariably mean that business is under way by 8 a.m. or even earlier.

Haggling is the order of the day, and it's usually successful, especially on the second day of a two-day event. Sometimes prices are reduced after the early hours of a sale, but most regulars will do their bargaining early on.

Some shoppers will patiently plow through barrels of unsorted merchandise; others won't play the game that way at all. "It's no fun," one veteran of the garage sale wars said. "And if it isn't fun, there's no point in it for me."

What is for sale? Literally everything, including the kitchen sink. Most common items are clothes, kitchen equipment, luggage, books, jewelry, children's clothes and toys. The sellers themselves are often amazed at what people will buy and what they will pay for what they want. Buyers are often amazed at the "treasures" they find and how little they have to pay for them. Of course it is "buyer beware," but most sellers are willing to plug in electrical equipment to prove that it works, or to tell the prospective buyer what is wrong with some other item.

SURROUNDED BY memorabilia older than he is, youngster Hans Hess patiently waits for customers during the family garage sale on Guadalupe Street. (M.G. photos).



IN CARMEL, garage sales offer the usual assortment of magazines, clothes, bikes and knick-knacks, but you can also find some rather interesting items like violins and globes.

Each weekend there are anywhere from six to a dozen Carmel sales listed in the local papers. The city limits its approval of such sales to one for each 12-month period for each residence within the city limits, and the sellers must obtain a permit at city hall. Nearly 100 permits have been issued in each of the last few years. Police officers are aware of the sales and occasionally shut one down for lack of a permit, which disappoints fans.

A few dealers make the rounds each weekend; they are looked upon as imposters by the amateur regulars. After a few months of earnest effort, the amateur buyer can sense from the wording of the ads and the location of the sales, which ones to get to first and which to put on the "only if time" end of their lists. Top priority: the sales put on by the regulars themselves, to get rid of their garage sale "errors!"

Steinbeck documentary on KQED

Friends of author John Steinbeck will share their memories of him in the KQED documentary premiere of Steinbeck: A Wayward Journey. The half-hour program, produced and directed by John Pattillo will be telecast Monday, Aug. 30 at 8 p.m. on Channel 9. It will be reshown Wednesday, Sept. 1 at 9:30 p.m.

Carlton "Dook" Sheffield, Steinbeck's college roomate and life-long friend, says of Steinbeck, "Now, if you look at many of his books, here is a man who had an extraordinary love for the working people and an understanding of human frailties and a love for the earth..."

Steinbeck: A Wayward Journey is an intimate retrospective of Steinbeck's California years: the communities he lived in, played in, and made familiar and immortal through his writings. Interview highlights include conversations with Steinbeck's official biographer Jackson Benson (whose Viking Press Steinbeck biography will be published in January), Salinas Valley oral historian Pauline Pearson, and Virginia Scardigli, who spent many hours with Steinbeck and his friend Ed "Doc" Ricketts in Doc's Cannery Row laboratory.

Shot on location in the Salinas Valley and the Monterey Peninsula, the documentary also features clips from some of the many classic films based on his novels.

JOHN STEINBECK as he appeared during his California years, when he immortalized the Salinas Valley and the Monterey Peninsula in many of his award-winning novels.

Steinbeck, a Pulitzer and Nobel Prize-winning author, wrote with an ecologist's sensitivity for the land and the human condition. His first works, Tortilla Flat, In Dubious Battle and Grapes of Wrath had a profound impact on American society. Steinbeck was called many things including a communist, a strike-breaker, a bum, a genius, and a traitor to his class.

Free bagpipe concert Sunday

The final performance in the Forest Theater Summer Sunday Afternoon Series will be by the ever-popular St. Peter's Highlander Pipe Band of San Francisco, Sunday, Aug. 29 at 2 p.m. The concert is free and the public is welcome.

The Scottish bagpipe as played by St. Peter's Highlander Pipe Band has evolved over many years from its primitive beginnings. Most likely introduced to Scotland by the Romans, it was developed by the Highlanders to the form we see today.

Today, groups such as the St. Peter's Highlander Pipe Band still play the "instrument of war." Under the direction of Pipe Major James McElroy, this prize-winning band is composed of members ranging in age from 11 years to just a wee bit older! McElroy has led bands in the United States and the United Kingdom.

See the pageantry and hear the tunes of glory performed by the St. Peter's Highlander Pipe Band at the Forest Theater, Mountain View and Santa Rita, Carmel.

For further information, phone 624-3996.

Final Hidden Valley concert Sunday

The combined Hidden Valley Youth Orchestra and Choir will perform in concert Sunday, Aug. 29 at 2:30 p.m. in the Hidden Valley Theater, Carmel Valley and Ford Roads, Carmel Valley. There is no admission charge for the concert.

Henry Holt of the Seattle Opera will conduct the orchestra; the choir will be directed by Los Angeles choral conductor John Waddell.

At the inaugural Pacific Northwest Festival, Holt became the second American conductor in history to lead a complete production of Wagner's The Ring of the Nibelung, a feat he has repeated the past seven summers.

Selected through competitive audition, the Youth Orchestra represents some of the most talented instrumentalists and vocalists in the country. They are in residence at the 19th annual Hidden Valley Summer Music Seminars progam. The program is designed to provide an intensive performance and educational training experience for young high school musicians.

A college accredited program, Hidden Valley brings together several leading music educators for the three week seminar, including Pulitzer Prize-winning music critic Martin Bernheimer of the Los Angeles Times.

Theater review:

An entertaining production of 'Picnic' in Carmel

By ANNE TELFORD

A day in the life of a small Kansas town is the subject of Picnic, which is the current offering of the Forest Theater Guild at the outdoor Forest Theater in Carmel.

Playwright William Inge won the Pulitzer Prize, the New York Drama Critics' Circle Award and the Donaldson Award for Picnic in 1953.

My major criticism of this production is the choice of the play itself. The thematic concerns of Picnic necessarily held more weight and were more poignant in the 1950s — a conservative era in which small-town America had to begin to struggle with a post-war economy, a baby boom and changing morals.

It is difficult to find much relevant social commentary in a play almost 30 years old; after a film adaptation starring William Holden and Kim Novak sizzled onto the screen I would have thought Picnic might retire. Although the play is entertaining, we don't really learn a lot about the 1950s specifically; we learn about certain people who are universal characters in rural America.

It is a bit difficult to imagine you are in Kansas when Carmel fog blows across the stage and pine trees tower behind the stage. However, Mark Malisoff's set is simple and workable. The white picket fence, windmill and house facades provide a realistic background for the action.

That action all unfolds in the yard shared by Flo Owens and Helen Potts. Helen Potts is a quintessential character; everyone has known a Helen Potts at one time or another. She is an older woman who likes being "around the young folks," takes in unfortunate drifters and always knows the latest gossip. Florence Mason is perfect as Helen. She brings enthusiasm and authenticity to her role, and her vocal inflections and mannerisms are right for her character.

Flo Owens, played by Suzanne Russo, seemed to have some problems with her role. It was difficult to picture such a young-looking woman as the mother of two teenage daughters. Her first act dialogue with Madge, the "pretty" daughter, lacked the fire of believability. In the scene, she advises her daughter to use her good looks to "catch" Alan Seymore, a rich man's son, and to thus avoid the sense of a wasted life her mother feels. Russo appeared not to have submerged herself in her character to the point where she believed her lines. They were delivered rather woodenly.

Holly Hofer, as Madge Owens, the daughter who claims "it's no good just to be pretty," is very good in her role. She brings spirit and intelligence to her part. I just wish, in view of all the time she spent "drying" her hair in the first act, that it had actually been wet!

As Hal, the pivotal character who waltzes into town with tight jeans and a naked chest to turn Madge's mother's carefully laid plans upside down, Ian Neuman is very attractive and likeable. Vee Mariano, who plays Rosemary Sydney, the old-maid schoolteacher with a beau and a bottle, is one of the stronger characters. She has presence and her scenes were among the more dynamic in Picnic.

Picnic essentially deals with stereotypes: the pretty girl, the smart girl, the alcoholic old-maid school teacher, the nosy neighbor, the mother who wants her pretty daughter to succeed where she has failed.

A summer romance set in the 1950s is not my idea of drama, but I must congratulate director Hamish Tyler and the cast of Picnic for an entertaining production.

The Beastmaster: Exciting adventures of a handsome hero played by Marc Singer, who possesses a supernatural ability to communicate with animals. With the help of this power and a heroic slave girl (Tanya Roberts), he seeks revenge against an evil priest (Rip Torn), for the murder of his father. Complete with barbarian hordes, pagan rites and strange creatures. At the State Three Cinemas.

Das Boot: Based on Lothar Gunther-Bucheim's best-selling, semi-autobiographical novel, Das Boot. The film by Wolfgang Peterson follows a daring patrol by U-96, one of Admiral Doenitz's famed U-boats, from its lusty send-off party in the Occupied French post of La Rochelle to its startling return months later. Known as the "gray wolves," the fleet prowled the North Atlantic challenging the British Navy at every turn. Jurgen Prochnow, the well-known German actor, stars as Der Alte, the U-boat commander. The crew aboard the U-96 is graphically portrayed in a desperate life and death struggle. This elaborate production is Germany's first World War II epic, sparking controversy as well as great acclaim. Rated R. At the Village Theatre.

Dead Men Don't Wear Plaid: Steve Martin and Carl Reiner at their creative best. This spoof of '40s private eye flicks has Martin roaming through adventures that have him talk and scheme with such screen idols as James Cagney, Humphrey Bogart, Veronica Lake and Bette Davis in film clips from some of their classic movies. Rated G. At the Regency Theatre.

Jeckyll and Hyde Together Again: At the State Three Cinemas.

E.T.: The Extra-Terrestrial: A million-dollar creature from outer space who has a magical life of its own. Children and adults will love Steven Spielberg's fantasy film about a creature from outer space stranded on Earth. Humor and wonder combine as a 10-year-old boy assumes responsibility for E.T.'s safety while searching for a way to reunite him with his own kind. Rated PG. At the Valley Cinema.

Fast Times at Ridgemont High: A comedy based on the best-seller by Cameron Crowe, who sneaked back to his high school alma mater several years after graduation and infiltrated the senior class. Rated R. At the Regency.

Friday 13th Part III: Another bloodsoaked thriller in which some hapless kids insist upon spending the weekend in a remote lakeside cottage reportedly stalked by a murderous madman. A new dimension in terror — in 3-D. At the Dream Theater.

Poltergeist: A sensationally effective haunted house movie produced by Steven Spielberg. It's about an ordinary American family living in a suburban house haunted by ghosts. Sensational, horrible and weirdly beautiful floating effects; scary but not sadistic, violent but not bloody. Rated PG. At the Dream Theatre.

The Secret of Nimh: An animated film based on Robert C. O'Brien's book, Mrs. Frisy and the Rats of NIMH, the story of a widowed mouse's struggle to save her children from destruction. The film carries us to a wonderful, sometimes scary underworld of colorful animal characters. Rated G. At the Center Cinemas.

The World According to Garp: Robin Williams is outstanding as Garp, who has a funny way of looking at life. The film is based on the best-selling novel by John Irving. A far-out comedy. Rated R. At the Golden Bough.

11th annual Carmel Festival of Dance announced

By RICHARD TYLER

This year Sunset Center is pleased to announce the Eleventh Annual Carmel Festival of Dance featuring five outstanding performing groups. Among them was Jose Molina Bailes Espanoles Company, making its third appearance on these series.

Jose Molina has been described as performing "with the silky wildness of a lean panther and the virtuoso ease of a practiced artist." His movements are sharp and precise and his aura of smouldering passion builds an intensity of high drama which pervades the entire show. Molina has met with extraordinary success the challenge of developing a company to complement his own talents and effectively portray the beautiful and exciting dances of Spain.

Jose Molina Bailes Espanoles have brought the excitement and joy of Spanish dance to North American audiences during their annual tours and in recent years millions of television viewers have also had the chance to see Jose Molina and the excitement of Spanish dance when he has appeared on such shows as The Tonight Show, The Big Show, The Merv Griffin Show, and with the Boston Pops.

Sunset Theater will be host to them on Friday, March 4, 1983. Opening up the series this year is Les Ballets Jazz de Montreal. It has been left up to a Montreal-based company of dedicated, well trained and attractive young dancers, most of them French Canadians, to have kept jazz ballet alive and in the best of health longer than any other modern dance company in the world today. Les Ballets Jazz de Montreal will be 10 years old this year and it has chalked up over these years an enviable reputation for itself both at home and abroad.

OVER THE past several years, the company has had a number of ballets choreographed especially for it by outstanding choreographers. And, it has obtained permission to perform others such as Escargot by Louis Falco and the exclusive rights to a number of the works in Lee Theodore's American Dance Machine repertoire.

This unique and highly original company has won the hearts of dance fans throughout the world. It has flaunted many of the more restrictive and conventional concepts of what a dance company should be and in so doing has won thousands of converts to a joyous new kind of dance artistry. Their performance at the Center will take place on Wednesday, Oct. 20.

Crowsnest, founded in 1978 by Martha Clarke, formerly of Pilobolus, made its stunning debut at the 1979 American Dance Festival. Working in collaboration with, among others, French choreographer Felix Blaska and Pilobolus' Robert Barnett, Crowsnest was formed to further explore creative interactions in dance, theater, and music. The company will have a season in Paris this winter at the Espace Cardin.

The company has since performed at festivals in Spoleto, Italy and Palm Beach, Fla. and has completed two half-hour films for Danish television. Crowsnest continues to appear throughout the United States and Europe and their current season includes performance in Paris, Joseph Papp's Public Theater in New York City and the John F. Kennedy Center in Washington, D. C. and, of course, at the Sunset Center Theater on Sunday, Dec. 5.

In 1981, the Oakland Ballet celebrated its 20th year as a leading West Coast professional ballet company. Through vision, passion, and sheer resourcefulness, it has carved out a special place in the world of dance.

It started in 1961 with Ronn Guidi, recently returned from studies in Europe and the new co-director of the Ballet Players Guild of Oakland. He gathered a group of dancers who shared his vision and set about the work of building a company. In 1972 the company embarked on a touring program, bringing their production of Nutcracker to schools and colleges throughout California.

In 1977 the Oakland Ballet was selected to participate in the National Endowment for the Arts Dance Touring program, an important touring program which includes such major companies as American Ballet theater and the Joffrey Ballet. The Oakland Ballet no longer need take second place to anyone. We are proud to present them for their second appearance at the Center on Saturday, Feb. 5, 1983.

Since its spectacular debut in February of 1981, Theater Ballet of Canada has enjoyed universal acclaim and established itself as a ballet company of international caliber. The quality of the company, its strong and elegant look, owes much to its heritage. Its roots lie with Toronto's Ballet Ys and Montreal's EntreSix. At the prompting of Celia Franca, Founding Artistic Director of The National Ballet of Canada and an active supporter of Theater Ballet of Canada, the two companies combined their respective strengths and made a new home in the nation's capital.

Above all, Theater Ballet of Canada is a theatrical event. Its stunning visual presentation — sets, costumes and lighting — provides a magnificent frame for this exciting and polished

A Concours for Mercedes at Crossroads Sunday

A Concours d'Elegance for the Mercedes Benz Club of America is planned at The Crossroads Shopping Center, Sunday, Aug. 29 from 8 a.m.-noon.

The Concours will follow the Western Caravan XXI at Laguna Seca Raceway, Saturday, Aug. 28. This is one of three national driving events held each year and the fourth time the event has been staged in the Monterey area. Previous races were run here in 1973, 1975 and 1979. The races are not open to the public.

However, the public is encouraged to visit the Concours d'Elegance. Scores from the Concours, together with those from the driving events, determine the overall standings for the high point award, the Daimler-Benz Trophy. This award will be presented on Sunday by a reresentative of Daimler-Benz, the manufacturers of Mercedes Benz automobiles.

Approximately 40 Concours entries are expected. The cars will range in vintage from the 1930s through current 1982 models.

The convention of "Gull Wing Group International," an organization devoted to the Mercedes Benz 300 SL sports car model of 1954-1963, will also convene in Monterey the same weekend. Many of these cars are expected to be at The Crossroads.

Concours judges will be Marcus Clary, general manager for administration for Mercedes Benz of North America; Max von Pein, director, Daimler-Benz Museum, Stuttgart, Germany and Win Estes, Emory Wanless and Dave Daniel of the Monterey Peninsula.

The Crossroads Shopping Center is at Rio Road and Crossroads Boulevard, off Highway 1, Carmel. Admission to the Concours d'Elegance is free. For further information, phone 625-4106.

Symphony auditions in Carmel

Auditions for the Monterey County Symphony 1982-83 season are scheduled Sunday and Monday, Aug. 29-30 at Sunset Center, Carmel.

Applicants should bring a resume and be prepared to play a work of their choice. In addition, applicants will be asked to sight-read. A warm-up room will be provided.

Repertoire for the 1982-83 season includes Don Juan by Strauss, Dvorak's Symphony No. 7, Beethoven's Piano Concerto No. 2 and Symphony No. 7 and works from the standard symphonic repertoire.

All interested musicians should phone the Symphony Office, 624-8511 or 758-3594 for an audition appointment.

CPR classes offered at hospital

There are still some openings in free cardiopulmonary resuscitation classes offered by Community Hospital in September, October and November.

The day-long classes, which are designed for the public, are scheduled for Saturday, Sept. 11, Room 8, Sunset Center, Carmel; Saturday, Oct. 9, Lebeck Room, Pacific Grove Community Center and Saturday, Nov. 6, Community Room, Monterey City Library.

Classes meet from 9 a.m.-5 p.m. on the dates indicated and attendance is strictly limited to those who have pre-registered.

Instructors are registered nurses or respiratory therapists employed at Community Hospital and certified by the American Heart Association to teach CPR. All successful graduates will receive an official CPR certification.

To register or to obtain information, phone 625-4505.

EASELS EVERYWHERE will greet the eye at the annual Monterey Arts and Crafts Festival Saturday and Sunday, Aug. 28-29 at the Custom House Plaza near Fisherman's Wharf, Monterey. Admission to the festival is free.

Big arts and crafts fair at Custom House Plaza this weekend

More than 200 artists and craftspeople will fill the Old Custom House Plaza near Fisherman's Wharf, Monterey on Saturday and Sunday, Aug. 28-29 for a major arts and crafts festival. This annual exhibition is one of the oldest and largest arts and crafts fairs in California.

Artisans from all over the West Coast and seven states will be represented; the festival begins at 10 a.m. both days.

The quality and variety of works at the festival grows every year as more artists are attracted to the event. The fair gained national attention several years ago in National Geographic magazine.

Every conceivable art form will be represented including oils, watercolors, acrylics, mixed media, photography, decoupage, stained glass, sculpture, weaving, glass blowing, wood carving, string art, metal, dried flowers, sand paintings, prints and lithographs, ceramics and jewelry.

Admission is free.

Afternoon of Meditation offered

The Monterey Peninsula sannyasins of Bhagwan Shree Rajneesh will present An Afternoon with Bhagwan, Saturday, Aug. 28 at 3 p.m. at the American Legion Post 512, Eighth and Dolores, Carmel.

There will be a taped discourse by Bhagwan followed by music and meditation. For further information, phone 625-3453.

Monterey Peninsula College will hold auditions for the main stage production of Pygmalion on Monday and Tuesday, Aug. 30-31 at 7:30 p.m. in the Monterey Peninsula College Theater, 980 Fremont Street, Monterey.

All parts are open for the romantic comedy by George Bernard Shaw. Actors are needed for 10 men, ages 13 through 70, and 10 women, ages 18 through 70. The public is welcome to audition.

The play will be directed by Marcia Hovick and is scheduled to open Oct. 14.

For further information, phone 646-4213.

Nirvana Foundation presents psychic

The Nirvana Foundation will present a seminar by Sylvia Brown, noted parapsychologist and psychic. She will be present Saturday, Aug. 28 in Forum 103, Monterey Peninsula College, 980 Fremont, Monterey from 10:30 a.m.-3:30 p.m.

The seminar will offer insights into the world of psychic phenomena and techniques personally developed by Brown for meditation and self-hypnosis. Self-awareness will be emphasized.

Tickets are $35 for non-members of the foundation, $30 for senior non-members, $17.50 for members and $15 for senior members. Tickets should be obtained in advance.

For further information, phone 1-996-8911.

Backgammon

Should you double?

By ALFRED SHEINWOLD

You, White, are on roll in the diagrammed position. Should you double? If you do, should Black accept?

In a word, no and yes.

In a pure running game you decide for or against a double by comparing the "count." You count what you need on the dice to bear off all your men, assuming no waste. Then count what your opponent needs. You have a sound double if your lead is at least 10 per cent of your count. Your opponent has a reasonable take if your lead is not more than 15 per cent of your count.

In this case your count is 96; Black's is 104. Your lead is only 8, slightly over 8 per cent of your count. Not enough for a sound double.

Moreover, this is not yet a pure running game. Black needen't rely solely on outrolling you; he may still get a shot at you.

In short, you don't have a sound double; and if you make the mistake of doubling, Black should accept.

Would you like to have Alfred Sheinwold teach you how to play backgammon? A 12-lesson booklet will be on the way to you when you send $1 plus a stamped, self-addressed, No. 10 envelope to Backgammon, in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1000, Los Angeles, Calif. 90053.

Gymnastics exhibition

Gymnastics — A Salute to an American Sport, an exhibition of international-caliber gymnastics, is planned Saturday, Aug. 28 at 7:30 p.m. in the Monterey Peninsula College gymnasium. The event is co-sponsored by the MPC Community Services Office and the Monterey Gymnastic Center.

Featured on the program will be gymnasts from the UC, Berkeley Men's Gymnastic Team and Laura Sanchez from the United States National Modern Rhythmic Gymnastic Team, as well as the boys' and girls' exhibition teams from the Monterey Gymnastic Center.

Sanchez, a 12-year-old gymnast from Marin County, will be featured in her first home state exhibition since she became the youngest member of the United States National Team.

Among the Berkeley gymnasts will be Billy Paul, Randy Wickstrom and Michael Bergman, all U.S. top NCAA competitors and 1984 Olympic hopefuls.

Proceeds from ticket sales will be used to further the training of Cal Berkeley's Men's Gymnastic Team. General admission is $5; children's admission is $3.

Monterey Peninsula College is at 980 Fremont Street, Monterey. For further information, phone 646-4063.

Crosby Fund donates $$$

The Bing Crosby Youth Fund has donated $3,000 in scholarship money for eight actors appearing in the current Monterey Peninsula Shakespeare Festival.

According to festival managing director Peter DeBono, the Crosby Fund, as part of its continuing support of the arts on the Peninsula, is the first organization to answer the festival's plea for scholarship money.

Scholarships were awarded on the basis of the applicant's financial need, scholarship ability and his or her plans to pursue a career in the theatre. The scholarships make it possible for the recipients to participate fully in the festival classes and productions.

Scholarship winners were: Stephen Moorer, Tracy Rhoades and Sid Cato of Pacific Grove; Randy McEndree and Jamie Aberdeen of Monterey; Chuck Hewitt of Waipahu, Hawaii; Joel Mullennix of Berkeley and Terri Amoon of Anaheim.

Photo portfolios will be considered

A portfolio with no more than 20 examples of the photographer's work and a biographical sketch should be submitted by Sunday, Aug. 29. A selection committee will review the work and contact candidates by mail. The portfolios may be picked up at the Art Center Friday, Sept. 3 before 5 p.m.

Black Theatre Workshop to offer play at Conference Ctr.

The San Jose Black Theatre Workshop production of Ceremonies in Dark Old Men, by Lonne Elder III, will be staged in the Steinbeck Forum at the Monterey Conference Center, Friday and Saturday, Aug. 27-28.

The performances are jointly sponsored by the Monterey Conference Center Art Commission and the Seaside Performing Arts Association.

The acclaimed 1969 drama about a father and his three grown children who try to make it in the big city has been characterized as reminiscent of Arthur Miller's Death of a Salesman.

The local production will be guest directed by Edmund Cambridge, who directed the original Broadway play 13 years ago. Cambridge is currently Resident Director of the New York Negro Ensemble Company.

Ceremonies will be staged at 7:30 p.m. each night. Tickets are $6, with special group rates for 10 or more at $5.40 each.

The conference center is at 1 Portola Plaza, Monterey. For reservations or further information, phone 646-3770.

Dye-transfer photographs on view at Friends of Photography gallery

An exhibit titled Dyed Images: Recent Work in Dye Transfer will open at The Friends of Photography Gallery Friday, Aug. 27 and will remain on view through Sept. 26. The gallery is in Sunset Center, San Carlos and Ninth, Carmel.

Organized by guest curator Ellen Manchester, the show presents a survey of conceptual and technical approaches to the dye transfer process by nine color photographers. The exhbition is funded by a grant from the National Endowment for the Arts and will travel in the United States through 1984.

Included are works by photographers Carl Kurtz, Syl Labrot, Kenda North, John Pfahl, Eliot Porter, Susan Shaw, Henry Holmes Smith, Stan Smith and Charles Swedlund.

Dye transfer is a method of printing high quality color prints from separation negatives. An assembly print process, dye transfer involves separating the red, green and blue components of a full-color scene onto a black-and-white matrix film by the use of color separation filters.

The negatives can be made directly in the camera from the scene itself or from either reflective prints or transparencies. While many color photographers have their images reprinted in dye to improve archival permanence, all the artists in this exhibition view manipulation of the process as an integral part of their aesthetic concerns.

Ms. Manchester will give an introductory lecture on contemporary color photography and artists working in the dye transfer process Friday, Aug. 27 at 7:30 p.m. in Room 20 of Sunset Center. A reception will follow. Both events are open to the public.

For further information, phone 624-6330.

The chef at the Cooks' Club will give a free demonstration on preparation of fresh fruit shortcakes Sunday, Aug. 29 from 10 a.m.-noon and 1-3 p.m. at the Peppercorn Restaurant in The Barnyard, Highway 1 and Rio Road, Carmel. The public is welcome.

Tuesday, Aug. 31 the chef will teach a class entitled "fish feast." Dishes to be made will include a molded shrimp salad; scallop terrine with a chardonnay sauce; soles soufflees a' la' mousse de homard — filet of sole stuffed with a mousseline of lobster, then souffleed in the oven and coated with a lobster sauce enriched with hollandaise and garnished with puff-pastry crescents.

Rice, vegetables, wine and a fresh blueberry clafoutis will be served with the class-prepared meal. The class will be taught from 11 a.m.-2 p.m. Cost is $16.

For further information, phone 625-0100.

Yolanda Mitchell voice recital Sunday in PG

Mitchell received her degree in music, specializing in voice, at Willamette University in Salem, Ore. She has appeared in Mozart's Cosi fan Tutte, Don Giovanni, and the Impressario, Pucci's La Boheme and Gilbert and Sullivan's Pirates of Penzance. She has performed in Metropolitarn Opera and San Francisco Opera auditions.

Mitchell will be accompanied by Ray Zumwalt-Howard at the piano. Howard is director of piano studies at Harnell College in Salinas.

The benefit concert is presented by the Women's Guild of Church of the Oaks in Del Rey Oaks. Proceeds of the recital will be given as a scholarship to enable Mitchell to attend the U.S.C. School of Opera in Los Angeles where she has been accepted for intensive study during the 1982-83 school year.

Admission is $5. For further information, phone 394-9456.

Swigart, others win Fair photo honors

Howard Swigart of Carmel and two Monterey photographers won the three "best in show" honors at the 1982 Monterey County Fair photography exhibit.

Swigart won in the color slide division for his pictorial, At the Waterhole.

There were 470 prints and 363 slides from 99 entrants in the competition.

Haiku woodblock prints on exhibit in Sunset Center's Evans Gallery

The Prints of the Haiku, a portfolio of woodblock prints, will be on display at the Marjorie Evans Gallery in Sunset Center, Carmel, through Oct. 14.

The prints, completed in 1967, resulted from a highly productive period of creative activity in the last decade of Stanton Macdonald-Wright's life.

Macdonald-Wright played a vital role in the American and international art world as the co-founder, with Morgan Russell, of Synchromism, and was one of the progenitors of color abstraction in American painting.

This exhibition is traveling on a national tour under the auspices of WAAM/The Art Museum Association, San Francisco, through the cooperation of Zara Gallery, also of San Francisco.

Throughout his life, Macdonald-Wright explored the vast possibilities for expanding self-awareness and creativity by nurturing his interest in the music, poetry, philosophy and art of the Orient where he collectively spent approximately one-third of his life.

From 1965-1967, Macdonald-Wright spent several months each year living in a Zen monastery in Kyoto where he illustrated 20 haiku poems by Japanese poets. He directly correlated the philosophy and structure of his color theories to those of Japanese verse.

The Marjorie Evans Gallery is open from 9 a.m.-5 p.m. weekdays and during performances in Sunset Theatre. For further information, phone 624-3996.

Coast Guard wants to keep Pt. Sur tract

The Coast Guard has requested that the President's Property Review Board, which studies the possible sale of federal lands, remove from consideration a 33-acre parcel of land surrounding the Point Sur Light Station.

In a letter to Rep. Leon Panetta (D-Carmel Valley) dated Aug. 11. Coast Guard Commandant Admiral James S. Gracey stated: "On July 12, 1982, my staff initiated a request to have the Point Sur property withdrawn from the Property Review Board's current inventory of excess Federal property. (Notice of final) action has not yet been received."

Panetta wrote to Gracey July 9 to urge that the Coast Guard take whatever steps were necessary to lease the land to the California Department of Parks and Recreation for recreational use in order to ensure its continued utilization by the public.

Gracey stated that withdrawal of the property from the Property Review Board's list would enable it, "as a landlord," to "license the property to the state for appropriate uses in accordance with a plan similar to that being discussed with the California Parks and Recreation Department.

"However, until we are permitted to withdraw the Point Sur property from the President's Property Review Board inventory, we will not be able to conclude a use negotiation with the state."

Panetta said the Coast Guard's action should lead to continuing use by the public of the land surrounding the Point Sur lighthouse.

'Drugs the number one issue that affects kids today'

By ROBERT MISKIMON

PEER PRESSURE can lead young people into drug abuse, but it can also lead them back out again.

At least, that's what the Parents Who Care group has discovered in its work with students in the Carmel Unified School District.

"High school students are very worried about young people getting involved with drugs," said Maureen Girard, president of the parent education group.

Parents Who Care plans to continue its program of drug abuse information at Carmel Middle School this fall, patterned after last year's successful effort to let high school students talk to younger children about the dangers of drugs.

Through the efforts of Dr. Therese de Barros, a Monterey opthamologist, Parents Who Care set up regular visits from Carmel High School students at Carmel Middle School.

About 20 high school students got involved in the program last year — including those who had never used drugs and those who had known some frightful drug-related experiences, Mrs. Girard said.

"The purpose is to educate children in decision-making about drugs," she said. "I think most of the children have thought about some real-life incidents involving drugs. The sixth graders we've talked to were extremely frightened that someone would force them or coerce them into using drugs when they got to the high school."

Middle school children are vastly relieved when they learn that high school students don't expect them to imitate their behavior, and don't approve of drug use, Mrs. Girard told the Pine Cone/Outlook.

The efforts of groups like Parents Who Care has been assisted by the gradual demystification of drug use, she said. Whereas drug use was once regarded as a passageway to higher consciousness or to an alternative lifestyle, it is no longer considered so exotic, Mrs. Girard said.

"We've noticed a lessening of drug use," she said. "It's probably part of a national trend. It's no longer a big secret; the mystique has worn off a bit. I think the secret aspect of it is what has held the power over us."

So with the apparent decline in popularity of drugs, the challenge for Parents Who Care has become to provide "positive alternatives" for their children, Mrs. Girard said.

She is the mother of three children, two of whom are students at Carmel High School. She and her husband, Gary, a landscape architect, moved to Carmel 11 years ago from the Los Angeles area. Mrs. Girard was involved with parent groups at Bay School, Carmel Middle School and Carmel High School before she realized that the drug problem was at the core of many other problems children have.

•

"IT'S THE NUMBER one issue that affects kids today," Mrs. Girard said. "You can talk about all these other issues that affect kids but if a kid is on drugs, it affects everything they do in school."

Parents Who Care tried several seemingly old-fashioned ideas during the last schoopl year to provide alternatives to parties where young people use drugs.

One of these was a "progressive dinner," in which about 40 high school students visited the homes of parents for each of the various courses in an extended meal, Mrs. Girard said. Another successful outing was a swimming and barbeque party at Robles Del Rio Lodge in Carmel Valley, she added.

"Once you eliminate the parties where the kids go to get stoned, you've got to provide some alternatives," she said. "We've had a period of about 15 years where the traditional kinds of social patterns in this country were interrupted. I think we can get in touch with some of those earlier patterns. But it will take the imagination and the help of parents to make a difference.

"This is really a big do-it-yourself project. We want parents and children to think about it early enough and to begin planning more intelligently for the time when they will be faced with drug decisions. Kids have gotten sucked into the drug sub-culture and parents have reacted with fear."

There has been another change in recent years which has given parents a better edge in dealing with teenage drug problems, Mrs. Girard said.

"For many years, parents were made to feel by mental health professionals they had no business interfering in their children's lives," she said. But the Monterey Peninsula Youth Project worked closely with Parents Who Care in its peer counseling program last year and continue in a supportive role, Mrs. Girard noted.

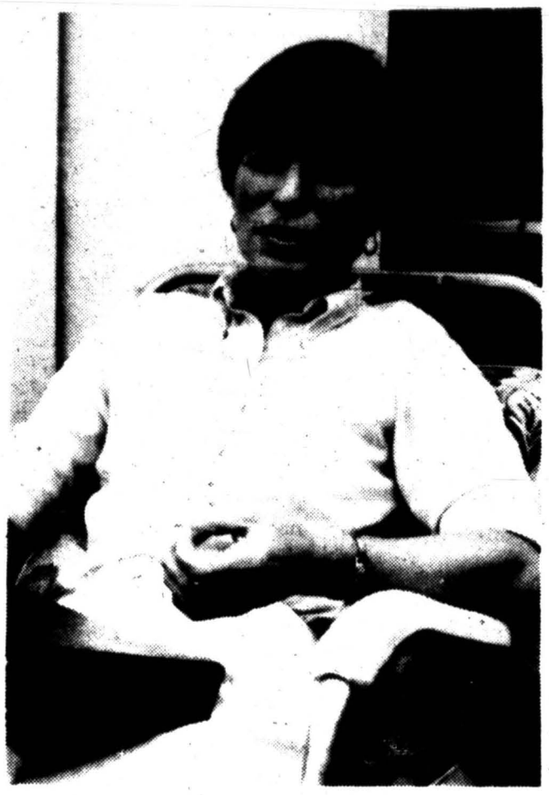
"Parents have somehow given the impression they're either not willing or not able to deal with this issue," she said. "So when a kid is faced with choices about drugs, they don't want to upset their parents so they don't mention it and that further erodes the communication process.

"It's really hurtful to know how many lonely, painful decisions have been made by some kids."

Mrs. Girard said absentee parents are a major contributing factor to teenage drug abuse.

"One of the biggest problems is parents who go away for the weekend and leave their teenagers alone," Mrs. Birard said. "A lot of the time when this happens the kids put on a party and invite all their friends. There are two or three of these parties every weekend. If the parents would stay home and put on some activities for their children, it would help.

"I wish parents would think about it more, especially since other kids get involved in this."



MAUREEN GIRARD, president of Parents Who Care, said the parent volunteer organization is ready to continue and expand its programs within the Carmel Unified School District this fall. (R.M. photo).

Take a close look!

If you haven't seen Village Green lately, chances are you're in for a pleasant surprise or two.

We've just completed making an already beautiful and intimate community of 22 single-family attached homes even more so . . . in keeping with the surrounding Carmel Valley community. We've added more mature landscaping to accent the rustic setting and there's now a fully-decorated model of our Plan B floorplan as well as a vignette of Plan A.

Exteriors crafted with cedar siding and shake roofs blend beautifully with landscaped front yards and individually fenced rear yards to give Village Green a special natural charm.

Best of all, we've added value to Village Green by drastically reducing prices to those who buy a new Village Green home today.

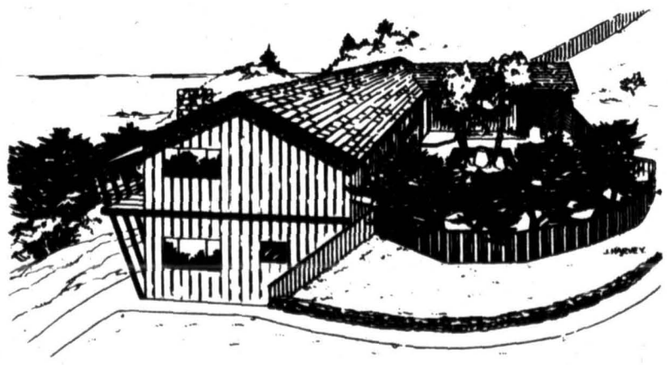
SUPER FINANCING

PLUS A LEASE-OPTION with only $25,000 will make this Spindrift Road home a most attractive buy. It's a Mediterranean beauty that has been updated to top condition, yet retaining all the original Spanish charm. It has four (or five) bedrooms, three fireplaces, lovely arched windows looking over a nice ocean view, ready for you to move in. Very well priced at $395,000.

WHITE WATER VIEWS



ALSO ON SPINDRIFT ROAD, also a superb buy, and with close access to a private beach, this Carmel Highlands home is on a nicely landscaped lot of nearly one acre. There are three bedrooms, three and one-half baths, two fireplaces, and much, much, more. Two recent sales in the area of comparable value have been in the range of $450,000, but this motivated seller would seriously consider an offer of $375,000.

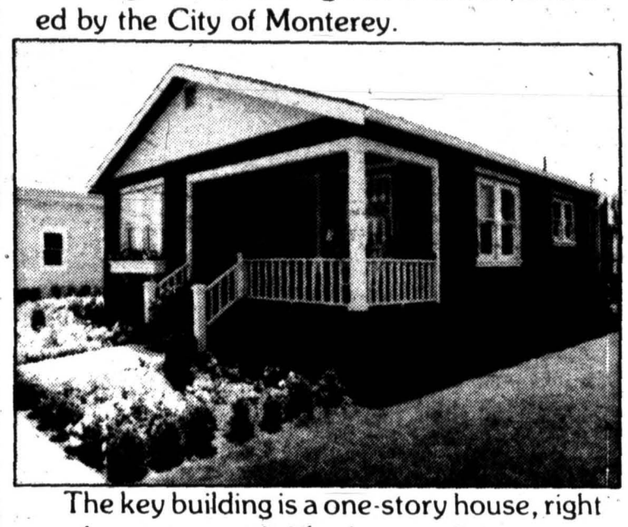
REAL ESTATE

Small Gold Mine at 6th and Park

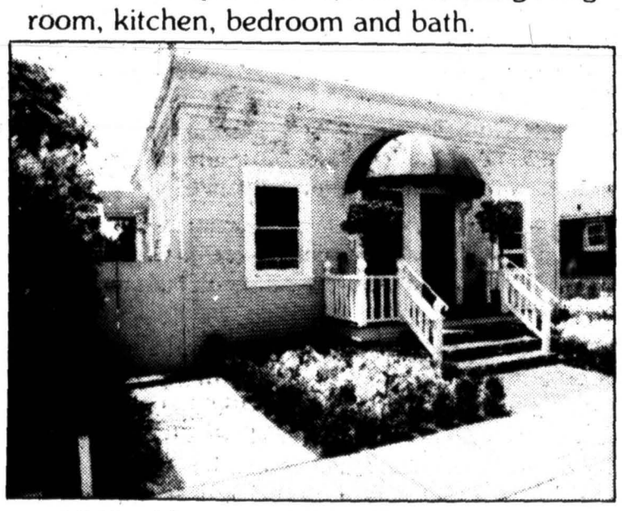
The claim is 100 x 100 feet square, located on a Monterey corner just one block east of Lake El Estero. It's level, beautifully landscaped, and currently produces income of $29,400 per year.

There are 3 buildings and 4 living units, all presently leased. The entire property was remodeled this year, so successfully that it won a Special Certificate of Merit for Outstanding Private Housing Rehabilitation, awarded by the City of Monterey.



The key building is a one-story house, right on the corner, with 2 bedrooms, living room, bath, kitchen and an elevated front porch. Just down 6th Street toward the lake is a slightly larger home with 3 bedrooms.

The third structure is on Park Avenue, a duplex done in New Orleans style with identical reversed apartments, each including living room, kitchen, bedroom and bath.



All 3 buildings are finished in narrow shiplap siding, painted in authentic Victorian colors. A series of neatly fenced back yards provides play space, gardening and recreation areas for each tenant. The beauty of this little complex is that everything is done. Flowers, fences, lighting, painting, appliances—all there, all done.

The location is a preferred rental area, close to the Naval Post Graduate School, near downtown Monterey, just a few blocks from Highway 1 leading easily to all points on the Monterey Peninsula. An ideal, trouble-free, perfectly located investment opportunity. $379,000.

Carmel — $199,000

Inside ivy-garlanded grapestake fencing, also set amid oaks, this shake-roofed, redwood cottage shelters both a patio and a deck. Hardwood and carpeted floors, beamed wood ceilings, bookcases and built-ins enhance the immaculate interior featuring a Carmel stone fireplace in the living room. A dining room, efficient kitchen, utility room, master bedroom suite with brass fixtures in the bathroom, and a second bedroom and bath complete living space. Adding to desirability are downstairs storage rooms with separate entrance, a potting shed in the garden and a detached garage.

Pebble Beach — $299,000

Conveniently close to the Monterey Peninsula Country Club, also the 17 Mile Drive threading past the Dunes Course and ocean, this tile-roofed, stucco home, not yet two years old, is on a quarter-acre site enhanced by nightlighted oaks and sprinklered, low-care landscaping. Rich carpeting, custom lighting, handsome tilework and cabinetry are found in the interior with a fireplace in both master suite and beamed-ceiling living room with a wet bar that also serves the family room containing breakfast space open to a kitchen with every modern cooking aid. A dining room, two more bedrooms, second bath, half-bath and double garage are among the assets.

Carmel Valley — $375,000

On a riverfront, 1.7-acre site, this adobe and redwood, shake-roofed home, also a guest house, seclude a patio and a deck. The warmth of wood in beamed ceilings and wall paneling is complemented by carpeting in the interior centered by living room with brick fireplace and window walls framing a willow-bordered sweep of the stream. Dining space divided by a wet bar from the kitchen, a pantry, bedroom and bath suite with study and abundant closet space, two versatile-use workrooms and a double garage increase livableness — AND — an adjoining acre is included in the price.

SOUND, PROFESSIONAL horse care begins with safe, comfortable accommodations and a high-quality feeding program at Rancho Laureles.

Our deluxe new barn offers the ultimate in luxury, safety and comfort. Each 12 x 12 box stall opens onto a securely fenced 24-foot paddock. Inside, all stalls have foot-cushioning rubber mats, automatic waterers and feeders. Stall fronts and sliding doors have heavy-gauge mesh so the horse benefits from good air circulation and seeing what's going on, while he is prevented from hanging his head over the door and possibly fussing with passing horses or people.

Walls between stalls are solid, so there's no rivalry with the horse next door. And all edges are reinforced with metal anti-chew strips. There's even a convenient blanket rack on each stall door.

Two spacious tack rooms are convenient to all stalls and offer individual tack lockers for each patron.

Of course, our old barn has a charm all its own, with oversized, exceptionally airy stalls and the same large adjoining paddocks. A large new wash rack with hot water to pamper your horse is right outside.

WHERE WE RIDE

Our two securely-fenced riding arenas offer excellent, well-drained sand footing. One measures 135 x 325 and is used for basic schooling as well as jumping. Our new 150 x 275 foot arena includes a regulation dressage court with plenty of room to spare!

And our 75-foot round lungeing arena is proving useful not only for lungeing, but for working green horses or beginning riders who profit from the secure surroundings.

The half-mile sand track that encircles our easterly fields is a perfect place to warm up a horse (or cool him out after a workout), leg up for an event or simply trot a few miles as good exercise.

Then there's Garland Park with its 541 acres of trails, plus the adjoining trails through to Robinson Canyon and the soon-to-be-opened new parkland to the east — a trailrider's paradise, uniquely beautiful every day of the year.

THE FINEST CARE

Now, more than ever, we believe that our feeding program pays off. Our 17% protein alfalfa hay cubes put weight on even rundown, skinny horses and keep it there.

We are also pleased to work with two of Monterey County's finest veterinarians and an excellent farrier, who all contribute to your horse's overall health and well-being.

LESSONS, ANYONE?

Whether you're just learning to post or have a specific problem over fences or in dressage, Doug Downing, our knowledgeable and very personable instructor, will come up with an answer.

He is available for private, semi-private or small group lessons on the flat or over fences.

GOOD COMPANY

One of the nicest things about Rancho Laureles is its relaxed, informal atmosphere. People tend to linger, and that makes us feel good, because it means they like it here. After a ride, they'll sit around, enjoy a cup of coffee or a soft drink and chat — mostly about horses, of course, but not always. Real friendships have grown among our riders.

But best of all, newcomers are made to feel genuinely welcome, whether they're nervous beginners or old pros. There's always a helping hand and a generous sprinkling of advice, and you feel you "belong" right from the start.

Seeing is believing. Why not drive out into the Carmel Valley sunshine to pay us a visit?

Bridal salon predicts fall weddings will be old-fashioned

Fall weddings will be very traditional and old-fashioned, predicts Enchanted Brides on Foam Street in Monterey.

Ivory is a popular color for fall wedding gowns along with traditional white. Taffeta is a big "new" fabric this season with puff sleeves and crystal pleating used for details.

Enchanted Brides is a complete wedding shop for the bride and her attendants, who will find hats, gloves, shoes (they will dye bridesmaids' shoes to match their gowns), invitations and gifts for attendants.

Butter-soft suede fashions at Skin Fits

The softest suede is what clothes are made of at Skin Fits in McFarland Center, Mission and Sixth, Carmel. The boutique offers many unique apparel items.

If you're searching for the unusual for a special occasion, Skin Fits offers many varieties of harem pants, dresses and cocktail dresses, as well as basic skirts and tops — all in beautiful, butter-soft suede leather.

This fall, as always, fine leather clothes are important fashion news. Keep warm and look divine in suede fashions. And, to dress you from top to toe, Skin Fits also offers Dan Post boots!

St. John Knits at Brittany's

Featured in the photograph above, left, is an ensemble of sand-colored silk blouse, multicolored woven jacket with black trim and scarf and black skirt.

In the center, a pimiento-colored, straight-line chemise dress with smocking detail in front and back is accented with a cowl neck that unbuttons to create an envelope flap. If desired, a knit belt accented with a chic gold horseshoe-shaped buckle changes the silhouette.

Jewelry Designs, in The Barnyard, Carmel, creates one-of-a-kind, hand-wrought jewelry using no molds or casts.

Pictured above (left) is a green flash Queensland opal with a 15 point diamond set in 18 karat gold; (center) a large, exceedingly fine 16 karat Australian crystal opal pendant, set in 24 karat gold; and (right) a fine Australian blue/green crystal opal, an extenuated oval shape, set in 18 karat rose gold and yellow gold.

Clothes for special evenings

Howard's also has wonderful maribou jackets in their totally elegant fall fur collection.

Ball gowns come in rustling taffeta; some are sleeveless with heart-shaped bodices and "adjustable" skirts that allow you to change from cocktail to formal length with a simple addition!

Carmel's Swiss Jeweler Henri Corbat has created jewelry for Mrs. Reagan

Corbat has designed several pieces of jewelry for First Lady Nancy Reagan and a pair of cufflinks for President Reagan.

His Carmel jewelry store is at San Carlos and Fifth. Although the emphasis is on custom designs, there is a dazzling array of rings, necklaces, pins and bracelets to delight every woman.

Derek Rayne's philosophy: quality tailoring, good fit

The Derek Rayne fashion philosophy is based on clean-cut elegance, quality tailoring and superb fit. The store offers a full line of both ladies' and mens' wear that prove their classic wearability season after season, year after year.

Each piece is an investment in fashion that never loses its appeal, sophistication and update versatility.

The a la carte idea is carried out by three stylists who offer the patron three price levels based on tenure and experience. That provides a price to suit everyone's pocketbook!

Patti's offers all kinds of permanents with new techniques for long hair and a special re-structuring perm, which is a new way to give a body wave.

They do hennas, cellophanes and weavings to create dimensional hair coloring. "Natural" hair colouring is important, as is highlighting hair to make it look natural as opposed to obviously dyed. Patti uses European French colors from Majeriel of Paris; these are products that create richer colos and add conditioning to the hair.

Mary does French braiding on short or long hair. You can also have a complete make-up application at Patti's, where you will find a complete line of Redken, Nexxus and Focus 21 products as well as jewelry and hair ornaments.

Mark Fenwick says: Fall look is long, lean, slim

The Mark Fenwick look for fall is captured in the photograph above: a longer-length jacket that creates a slender look is teamed with a slim dirndl skirt. The jacket is in terra cotta wool by Finity; the skirt is a striped wool blend in shades of rust, brown and terra cotta. The pullover sweater by Liz Claiborne comes in autumn green.

The shape this fall is a long, lean and slim. A popular alternative is the romantic, feminine look created by fuller skirts, shorter jackets, ruffles on collars, cuffs and jabots. Delicate fabrics include crepes and georgettes with lots of lace trim.

To put the total look together, Mark Fenwick has bags, belts, hats, jewelry and a full line of hosiery. A great collection of blouses, shirts, and knitted pullovers and cardigans guarantees your favorite separates will be very well-paired.

Key to cellulite therapy

Connective Tissue Massage is the key to cellulite therapy at Figure Contour By Carole. Connective Tissue Massage is a highly specialized massage technique which involves kneading the flesh to separate the fatty cells. It also loosens tension knots, reactivates sluggish circulation and mobilizes fatty deposits. The entire body improves its tone, is firmed and reshaped. Connective Tissue Massage is actually body sculpturing!

A special diet may not be necessary, but to benefit from the program you must eat well-balanced sensible meals. By recording your daily intake of food and drink, you will become aware of what you consume and will re-educate your eating habits.

The standard contour program consists of a series of 10 treatments over a period of three to five weeks. After 10 visits Carole's patrons average 7-17 inches lost — confirmed by measurements recorded at the beginning and end of the series.

The contour program is highly personalized. Some clients continue treatment on an individually designed maintenance contour program; others return periodically or not at all.

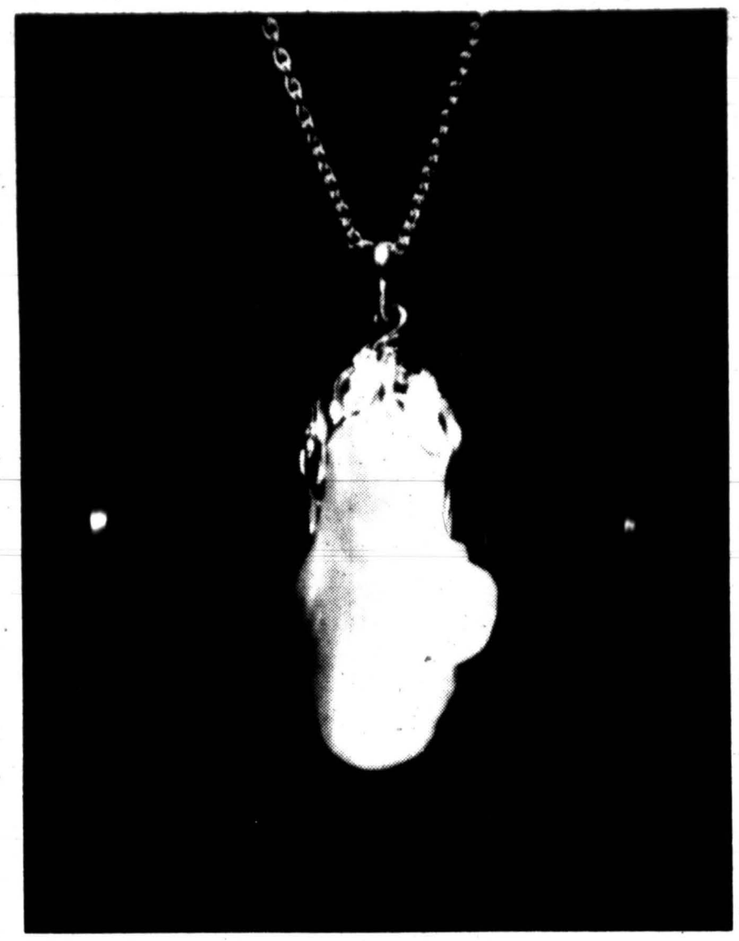
Fashion with flair at Peck & Peck

Fashion with flair abounds at Peck & Peck, on the Ocean Avenue level of Carmel Plaza. A complete collection of Liz Claiborne designer fashions heads the list here. You'll also find a wide selection from their own line of ready-to-wear clothing as well as many other popular designers.

The model above wears olive green corduroy pleated-front straightleg pants by Peck & Peck, with a turtleneck sweater handmade in Italy for Peck & Peck in shades of rust, olive, periwinkle blue, purple and winter white — all big fall colors. Over the sweater she wears a pigskin suede jacket with elastic wrists and waist in the new shorter blouson style for fall. Special detailing includes a pleated front and back and snap button front.

The popular Liz Claiborne collection for fall incorporates olive and gold earth tones as well as pastel colors. Lots of ruffles and pleats appear as well as the "loose" look which means fullness at the top tapering down to a straight leg or hem.

Keep in step with fashion!



Colored gemstones enjoying resurgence, says La porte's

Colored gemstones are enjoying a resurgence in popularity and La Porte's has the pink, purple and blue stones that will coordinate so well with this fall's new fashion colors.

The exciting array includes pink and blue sapphires, blue and lavender jade, tourmalines from blue indicolite to pink rubelite, amethysts, garnets and aquamarines.

Pearls continue to make a strong fashion statementy and La Porte's is designing a special collection of salt water pearls that will come out next month. Choker, matinee and opera lengths, in single, double and even triple strands, will be available.

Salt water pearls come in many different shades and range from white and ivory to golden to suit every skin tone. They also have lovely silver grey and iridescent black pearls!

Clasps are bejeweled or elegant, tailored gold; diamond clips are very popular. One of the newer looks, which is a fashion revival, is rondells — circlets with diamonds or gold that can be added in sections to a pearl necklace.

Another fashion in clasps is the "mystery clasp" with a fastening mechanism hidden inside two pearls so the necklace has a perfectly clean line. The mystery clasp also makes it possible to wear your pearls several different ways by combining two choker length necklaces to form a longer necklace.

In addition to their custom-designed jewelry, La Porte's, at 165 Fountain Ave., Pacific Grove, offers a fine selection of estate and antique jewelry.

Everything for the golfer, plus fashion clothing at PB Golf Shop

New for all at the Pebble Beach Golf Shop is a tremendous selection of new Nantucket shirts and blouses in fall colors and a large collection by Gordon of Philadelphia. In addition to fashion clothing, you'll find everything to outfit the golfer.

Always popular with ladies for fall are the imported 100 percent Scottish wool reversible plaid skirts in wonderful shades with delicate pleating.

Pictured above is a delightful golf or leisure outfit. Team a J.G. Hook argyle sweater of 100 percent Shetland wool with G.T. cotton and polyester knickers. The model wears ladies' Footjoys golfing shoes.

Since the 1982 U.S. Open at Pebble Beach, the Golf Shop has enjoyed a growing mail order business. For holiday giving they offer a full line of souvenir and gift items including glassware, Courouc trays (made right here on the Monterey Peninsula), jewelry, T-shirts and sweatshirts with logos.

The Golf Shop has Footjoy, Johnson & Murphy and Etonic golf shoes for men and women, and windbreakers from Duckster and Izod. Their handbags by Daby in a useful doctor's satchel style are available in several different colors of leather.

Sweaters in elegantly comfortable cashmere by Lady Stratford, Alan Paine and Lyle & Scott are available in a wide range of colors and styles.

Knickers are big this year and the Golf Shop shows them in many styles, some with embroidery. Mens' knickers are called Plus Fours! Ladies' Corbin tweed blazers in the new short length are a nice fashion accessory with knickers and coordinated knee socks.

Perfumes, cosmetics share space

At Surf'n Sand Drugstore, on Sixth Avenue near Torres, Carmel, fine perfumes share space with equally famed cosmetics.

Fall is L'Air du Temp by Nina Ricci, or the incomparable My Sin by Lanvin. Lovely fragrances by Christian Dior, Guy Laroche, Revlon and Elizabeth Arden are others you'll be tempted to try.

The right scent is as important to a man's self-image as to a woman's. Colognes created especially for men come from Geoffrey Beene, Monsieur Rochas, Christian Dior, Old Spice, English Leather and Eau Savage.

This fall Elizabeth Arden has created an exciting new line of cosmetics for lips, eyes, nails and cheeks based around the color scarlet. Shades include scandalous scarlet, raging red, stormy rose and mysterious mauve, all coordinated to wear with this fall's new fashion colors.

Discover the one-stop shopping experience at Surf'n Sand, where you'll also find wines, candies and sundries, plus convenient free parking.

Foil hair coloring, tortoise shell streaks are specialty of Shirley Bradford Hair Designs

Foil hair coloring, tortoise shell and natural-looking sunstreaks are specialties at Shirley Bradford Hair Design in Carmel Rancho Shopping Center, Highway 1 and Carmel Valley Road.

The staff here has been specially trained by Redken laboratories in permanent waving techniques. The salon offers a complete line of famed Redken products.

Hair is not the only part of you that receives tender, loving care at Shirley Bradford. Manicures and pedicures smooth the rough spots off your hands and feet and complete custom make-up service is available for those very special occasions. French braiding and even ear piercing can be done right in this service-oriented shop!

Don't forget the men in your life. They, too, will appreciate the quality haircuts and permanents they'll receive here.

Custom-designed contemporary and estate jewelry at Fourtane's in Carmel

Fourtane's Jewelry in the Pine Inn Courtyard, Ocean and Lincoln, Carmel, has offered its patrons contemporary, custom-designed jewelry and a fine collection of estate jewelry for the past 25 years.

Pictured above are a pendant and ring set with beautifully shaped freshwater pearls from Lake Biwa in Japan. The pendant is approximately two-and-one-half inches long and is an original, one-of-a-kind design. Both pieces are set in 14 karat gold with brilliant diamonds. They were created by Fourtane's jewelry designers.

Feminine, romantic lingerie fashions in natural fabrics at Amourette

Amourette in French means "fanciful attitude." It is also the name of an elegant and lovely lingerie shop on Dolores between Ocean and Seventh, Carmel.

Fashions that are feminine and romantic in natural fabrics such as cotton and silk are the specialties at Amourette.

Imported and American designer lingerie bear the famous names of Christian Dior, Lore, Mary Stuart, Collectors Item, Sabeth Row and Lejaby to name a few.

Sami of New York designs a line of tailored, yet exciting silk camisoles, kimonos, bias-cut gowns and tap pants. Bias-cut garments ensure the best possible fit.

Some of the lingerie such as teddies and kimonos are able to make the transition from boudoir to evening wear gracefully and fashionably.

Amourette's fine line of lingerie et deshabille paves the way for any woman to create a romantic, flirtatious mood.

'Art to Wear' featured always at Ornamentique

An exciting boutique is Ornamentique in the Mission Patio, Mission between Fifth and Sixth, Carmel. It is a gallery of art-to-wear, featuring exotic handmade clothing and accessories.

Two creative sisters, who know lots of creative people, have designed a collection of clothes that are more like ornaments than apparel.

Ornamentique has sweaters, wool coats (some with beading), hand-painted silks and hand-spun silk sweaters. Many of their designs are created by local craftspeople.

Co-owner Melinda is shown wearing an original silk and rayon sweater hand-crocheted by a San Francisco artist.

Ornamentique also offers hand-crocheted baby clothing, lingerie in silk and cotton and interesting handmade jewelry.

Everything for bride, attendants at the Custom Wedding shop

The most important day in a woman's life, her wedding day, begins at The Custom Wedding in Del Monte Shopping Center, Monterey. Everything for the bride and her attendants, including veils, designer lingerie, shoes, invitations and tuxedos for the men in the party is offered!

Bianchi, Eve of Mi Lady, Alfred and Angelo and, for bridesmaids, Mi Lady, Jordan and Bianchi gowns are offered.

Ruffles, the Victorian and country looks are making fashion wedding news this fall. Traditional white is very popular with candelight a close second. Taffeta and satin are fabrics of choice for gowns.

Fall comes to Holman's

Holman's, with stores in Pacific Grove and Carmel Rancho Shopping Center, has everything new for fall, from corduroy slacks and smashing sweaters to sophisticated dresses that take you from work to an evening out on the town!

Pictured above (left) is a blouse and skirt by Tatoo of 100 percent cotton in a sage green print; the blouse has a bib yoke and contrast print puff sleeves. The skirt is four-tiered of contrast prints with an elastic waist. At right is a blouse, jacket and pants ensemble by Modern Junior of 100 percent polished cotton. The pants are yoked front and back with a self-fabric belt. The blouse is in a popular ruffled style with coordinating stripes. The jacket has an asymmetrical front closing and banded bottom.

Service and quality go hand-in-hand at Holman's. You'll be sure to enjoy your shopping experience while looking for the latest in fall fashions for men and women.

Gemstones are the pride andjoy of D'Lanor shop in Barnyard

Gemstones are the pride and joy of D'Lanor of Carmel, in The Barnyard. Mineral specimens on display in the shop show the gem stones in their natural state; of course, they have cut and faceted stones of all kinds and colors.

Did you know that garnets come in every color but blue? Tourmaline actually comes in every color, while sapphires may be orange, yellow, green or pink as well as traditional blue!

Gemstones for a custom jewelry design may be selected from D'Lanor's wide array or belong to the client. D'Lanor can assist you in selecting a standard setting or in the design of a custom setting. The piece is first done in wax for the customer's approval before it is cast.

Stones may be set in gold and platinum. The lost wax and hand-fabricated casting methods are used for settings. Platinum is always made up by hand. D'Lanor has a goldsmith on the premises.

Great gift ideas include "conversation pieces" in the form of small, medium and large mineral specimens, geodes and petrified wood bookends in addition to their fine jewelry.

Distinction with classic flair is the hallmark of clothes women find at the Carmel Dress Shop on Ocean Avenue at Dolores Street, Carmel. That translates into beautifully tailored suits and dresses in luxurious yet practical fabrics.

Shown above is an Ultra Suede jumper, guaranteed to travel like a pro (it washes and dries beautifully), yet elegant enough to meet heads of state.

The Carmel Dress Shop offers the largest collection of Ultra Suede garments in town as well as coatdresses, coats, suits and jackets from Gino Rossi, Count Romi, Lilli Ann, Castleberry knits in the classic look.

Choice fall colors are rose and blue, in two and three-piece dresses of wool blends as well as other popular fabrics.

It's fun to be in fashion!

Little people love new fall clothes as much as grown-ups. At Allison's in Carmel Plaza, doting mothers, grandmothers and aunts will find not only the basics in infants' and children's clothes but the extra special as well.

New for children this fall are greys and lighter colors. Fisherman's knit sweaters keep children warm and comfortable and Jordache knits tops and pullovers make them fashionable as well.

Wonderful gifts for newborn infants include warmers with hoods and covered hands and feet that keep baby warm enough to join mom and dad for a walk on the beach. These "Huggies" are available in sensible poly/cotton blends in a wide range of colors.

In addition to clothes for girls in sizes 0-6X and boys' sizes 0-7, Allison's has delightful accessories and a positively adorable menagerie of stuffed toys.

New looks for fall at Lilli's are special occasion dresses, velvet jackets with Renaissance ribbon sleeves and chemise dresses that barely touch the body.

Face-framing ruffles and luxury fabrics are important fashion ingredients. The look in evening pants are palazzo pants that flow softly like a skirt; they come in the new shorter cocktail length as well as a more formal ankle length.

Wonderful reversible handmande coats and jackets will keep you warm and beautiful, and Lilli's also has a collection of natural raw silk tunics with Navajo-inspired appliques. Lilli's famous floating ribbon skirts and tunics are available in many styles and colors for every festive occasion. And everything but the coats and Navajo jackets are specially designed by Lilli herself.

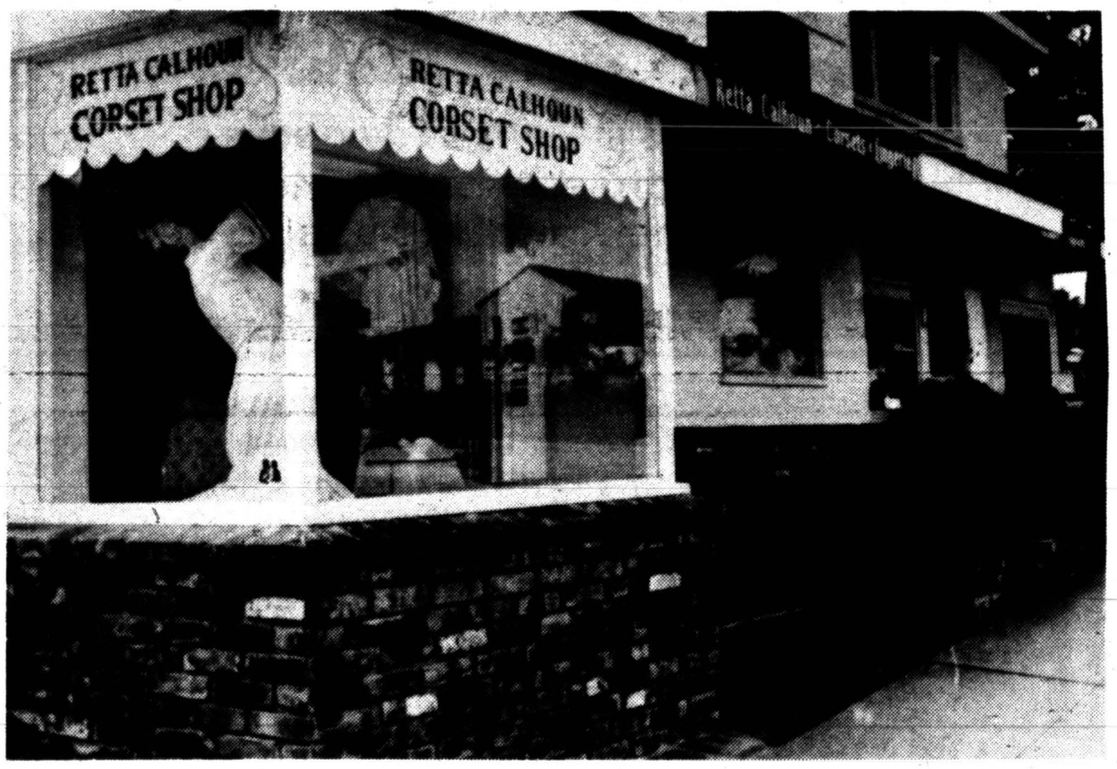
Friendly professionalism key to success of Sim, Friends

Sim and Friends, located on the third level of Carmel Plaza (above I. Magnin's), is a full-service beauty salon with a private facial room. The seven-person staff specializes in pedicures, manicures and sculptured nails as well as permanents, haircuts and a full range of hair coloring.

Friendly professionalism is the keyword here. The staff is involved in advanced education and attends many "hair shows" to keep up with the latest advances in the hair industry.

Sim and Friends will handle walk-ins as well as appointments. They do many men's permanents as well as women's.



Intimate apparel at Retta Calhoun

Retta Calhoun specializes in intimate apparel at her landmark lingerie shop at Hartnell and Webster Streets in Monterey. The store was established in 1947.

Retta offers everything in lingerie: brassieres, panties, girdles, full and half slips, nightwear, robes, camisoles, slippers and teddies.

She carries the fine lines of Vassarette, Henson, Bali, Warners, Barbizon and Shadowline. Retta specializes in custom fitting undergarments to the customer. Her lingerie styles are suitable for every woman from the teenager on up!

There is a wide selection of loungewear including lovely panne velvet robes with over-the-head styling that can make the transition from at-home wear to an elegant evening. Retta advises customers that loungewear is usually less expensive than formal fashions and can easily adapt to wear outside the home by the use of accessories.

Treat your skin to complete care

Biogenic Skin Care at 26335 Carmel Rancho Blvd., Carmel, is the home of three licensed estheticians who perform deep pore cleansing, Swedish massage and complete facials. Cell rejuvenation treatments are planned in the future.

Owner Elizabeth Sosic (pictured at right in the photograph) and Beth Geauthreaux consult on treatment for specific skin types.

Deep pore cleansing is important for all skin and particularly for oily or blemished skin. It involves gentle removal of dead cells by bringing cells to the surface and should ideally be done once every three to six weeks.

Biogenics uses only Christine Valmy products and will instruct patrons on proper skin care. Fifty percent of all skin problems are caused by improper care and using the wrong cosmetics for the skin type. Inadequate or improper skin cleansing and use of heavy creams is often the cause of problems.

A facial at Biogenics involves steaming the skin; brushing it with a soft brush; desincrustation (a method by which the hardened layer of oils, creams and pollutants is melted down); vacuum suction and specialized treatment for various skin types — dry skin gets massaged for stimulation and oily skin gets cleansed to remove impurities.

Biogenics also offers light peelings and masks tailored to skin type. Ionization is a finishing touch; it is a method that forces cream into the deep layers of the skin and closes the pores.

Not only is this wonderful for your skin, but a facial is a remarkably relaxing experience.

i Natural combines natural ingredients with the wonders of science to produce a totally appetizing collection of garden-inspired cosmetics which work effectively, smell delicious and are a pleasure to use. They help to keep your skin clean, healthy and pretty.

i Natural offers a systematic approach to skin care with a full line of cosmetics, cleansers, moisturizers and bath/shower treats.

Soft, full look at Mayfair Boutique

Mayfair Boutique in Carmel Plaza presents clothes with a soft, full look this season. The dress pictured above is a perfect example of the new fall look: a feminine cocktail-length dress in matte taffetta in elegant black with a Paris rose color belt.

Black with a splash of color is big this fall; dresses are shorter and elegance is "in." Mayfair offers many designer names and styles in dressy and casual styles.

Kicky fashions for young and young-at-heart!

Seasons, on the corner of Ocean and San Carlos in Carmel, offers kicky fashions for the young and the young-at-heart. Here you will discover European imports and American designer fashions in beautiful cottons, silks, and fine wale corduroys.

Plum and teal are important colors this fall and Seasons has many fall separates in these and other popular shades. A wonderful dress by Marvin Singer for Depeche (from Paris) combines several colors in an enchanting Pirot-like style.

Seasons offers a complete collection of accessories as well as luscious leather jackets and vests, a wide selection of sweaters, sweater-vests and even pigskin suede sweatshirts! Gambit-patterned stockings (featured in Vogue magazine) come in many styles with bright designs on solid color tights.

Seasons has Guess Who jeans in both natural denim and dyed bright colors with zippered legs. They also offer the New Hero line of 100 percent native American cotton in white and bright colors in shirts and harem-style pants.

Ruffles and stripes are big and Seasons has many clothes with these popular fall accents.

The models in the photograph above are wearing Seasons' own line of sweatshirts and jogging pants in assorted colors. They can be dressed up or down through the use of accessories.

The new Isadora's in The Crossroads, Highway 1 and Rio Road, Carmel, specializes in designer collections. Among the names you'll find are Blassport by Bill Blass, Betty Hanson, Harvey Bernard, Cygne Gamma and Pierre Labiche.

Isadora's has a large selection of "weekenders" — coordinated blouses, skirts and pants, as well as separates and some cocktail wear. They will offer accessories in the near future.
